New Coast-to-Coast Record
Good Railroad News
Hitler and Achilles
All Is Motion

—By Arthur Brisbane—

COL. ROSCOE TURNER again beats the ocean to ocean flying record, this time by 13½ minutes. Trains make the journey in four days and three nights. Turner made it in less than 11 hours. That must make intelligent railroad men think hard.

The Pullman company has news to comfort advanced railroad men that would like to escape from "horse and buggy, and Civil War railroading," as William B. Stout of Dearborn, Mich., aptly calls modern railroading.

This column has been howling and yelling during 16 years for stream-lined, light passenger coaches, capable of high speed, to replace the present slow coaches that carry 20 passengers and weigh 160,000 pounds. A new Pullman coach, built by Mr. Stout, presumably for W. A. Harriman's Union Pacific, will carry 50 passengers and weighs only 25,000 pounds, thanks to light duralumin construction.

Its stream-lining reduces air resistance by 50 per cent and it will go 90 miles per hour.

Wind resistance in an ordinary coach at that speed would use up 90 per cent of the engine's energy. Such light cars, driven by Diesel engines, could carry passengers from coast to coast at $20 each, make a good profit and end automobile bus competition.

In the midst of our NRA program we may suddenly find something exciting going on.

Johan Mowinckel, prime minister of Norway, warns the League of Nations that war danger exists, and it does.

The situation between France and Germany is dangerous, and Russian newspapers, that speak for their government, or not at all, openly threaten Japan.

General Goering, Germany's fighting aviation minister, talks peacefully to Jules Sauerwein, editor of the Paris-Soir. Says he: "We don't want war. I say this to you, and I am a soldier whose business it was for years to make war."

But, he adds: "We are entirely surrounded by nations that are friends or allies of France. Would anyone pretend that we are in a position to defend ourselves from air attack?"

He demands an adequate air fleet, and Germany will build it, unless a Communistic revolution, feared by Lloyd George, should prevent. Professional soldiers, denouncing war, sometimes deceive themselves.

Achilles, "fleet of foot," said with all sincerity, to his mother, the sea-nymph, Thetis: "May strife perish utterly among gods and men, and wrath that stirreth even a wise man to be vexed." But ten lines farther on, as you read in the 18th book of the Iliad, he has changed his mind, thus "But now let me win high renown, let me set some Trojan woman, some deep-bosomed daughter of Dardanus, staunching with both hands the tears upon her tender cheeks and wailing bitterly."

A number of fiery gentlemen in Europe and Asia would like to "win high renown" and war is the short cut to that end.

The California Institute of Technology announces that man has "actually seen the miracle of creation of matter."

The terrific speed of "fast-flying radium rays is converted into electrical particles." In other words, "matter can be created from pure motion," since all matter consists of atoms, which are nothing but "electrical particles" charged positively and negatively, the kind of matter depending on the number and arrangement of these electrical particles within the atom.

In other words, all reality, everything that we call "the material universe" is simply motion. Long ago Sir Humphrey Davy by rubbing together two pieces of ice at 29 degrees Fahrenheit, obtained water at 35 degrees Fahrenheit. And nearly a hundred years ago, Robert Mayer, a German physician proved that water could be heated by shaking it.

Another group of scientists say they can create the plasm, or whatever it is in which life originates. Possibly they can, although it seems improbable,

JAIL TERMS FOR TAXI DRIVERS

Six taxi drivers were fined $50 each and given one month each in the House of Correction today by Judge Carr in municipal court for soliciting business on Columbia rd. and Blue Hill ave. in competition with the Boston Elevated. They appealed. The drivers are J. J. Derba, Massachusetts ave.: Max Cohen, Eustis st.: Jacob Seligman, Lucerne st.; Hyman Sibitt, Columbia rd.; Samuel Comak, Brunswick st., and C. S. Fox, Newbern st., Hyde Park.

HAYES ASKS "SHOCKING BEER CONDITIONS"

Chairman Wiliam T. Hayes of the State Alcoholic Beverages Commision today wrote to Chairman Harry B. Putnam of the legislative committee which is drawing up a "hard liquor" law, demanding full details of the alleged "shocking conditions" in beer places in Boston, Worcester and Springfield, as reported by Rep. Roland D. Sawyer. (Further details on Page 3).

DUMP TRUCK MEN ASK ELY FOR RAISE

More than 200 representatives of the Dump Truck Owners' Association, the Road Builders' Association and the State Public Works Commission met with Gov. Ely this afternoon to discuss an increase in the hourly rate now being paid operators of trucks on public jobs so that they can observe NRA requirements without operating at a loss.

Foley's Lead Swelled In Straw Ballot

The narrow gap between Dist.-Atty. William J. Foley and Frederick W. Mansfield, former state treasurer, widened perceptibly today as the latest returns were counted in the Straw Ballot Test Election for mayor of Boston conducted by the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser among registered Democratic voters.

A total of 1261 ballots was tabulated for the day, bringing the returns now in to the grand total of 4586.

The day's balloting found Foley and Mansfield again in the forefront of all competitors. Foley received 491 votes, Mansfield 397, a net day's gain for the former of 97 votes.

Grand total: Foley, 1788; Mansfield, 1393.

COLLINS NOW OUT

Paul A. Collins, son of the late Gen. Patrick A. Collins, who was one of Boston's most distinguished mayors, retired from the contest and asked that he be not voted for. Some of the determined citizens persisted in marking ballots for him as they did, also, for Joseph A. Tomasello, who has withdrawn to devote his attention to business affairs.

| | Total |
| William J. Foley | 1788 |
| Frederick W. Mansfield | 1393 |
| Theodore A. Glynn | 389 |

ELY RETREATS ON GOODWIN

What appeared to be a most startling "about face" was executed by Gov. Ely today in regard to Frank A. Goodwin, chairman of the Boston Finance Commission, whom he assailed so bitterly as a "labor racketeer" in Chicago a few days ago.

Asked today whether he would persist in his announced intention of granting Goodwin an "ouster hearing" at tomorrow's meeting of the council, the governor said that so far as he knew, nothing would come up before that body that would concern Goodwin or require his presence on Beacon Hill.

Ely said he had received no communication from Goodwin requesting a hearing, nor had any charges been filed against him.

Meanwhile, it was understood Goodwin was leaving the matter entirely in the Governor's hands. He said he desired to be present at the meeting if any charges are to be made against him, but if this is not done he probably would make no effort to attend.

The tempest blew up a few days ago when Ely assailed Goodwin for his part in the Brockton shoe strike as counsel for the Brotherhood of Shoe Workers and Allied Crafts. He also accused him of collecting $2 each from States House employes to further their interests.

The Governor said that he did not wish to discuss his charges against Goodwin. He said that he was not interested in Boston's mayoral race.

"I'm from the sticks," he said in denying that he would support any candidate. "I don't know anything about Boston politics."

MACHINE GUN KELLY IS TRAPPED

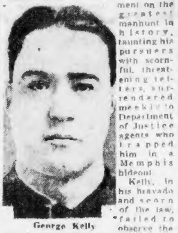
U. S. Agents Arrest Desperate Fugitive in Memphis, Tenn.

Memphis, Sept. 26 (INS)—George "Machine Gun" Kelly, America's No. 1 desperado, sought for a series of abductions, bank holdups and massacres that have terrorized the nation, fell into the clutches of the law today.

The man who had sent the organized forces of law of the 48 states and the Federal Government on the greatest manhunt in history, taunting his pursuers with scornful, threatening letters, surrendered meekly to Department of Justice agents who trapped him in a Memphis hideout.



George Kelly

Kelly, in his bravado and scorn of the law, failed to observe the simple precaution of posting sentries.

Department of Justice agents from Birmingham, acting on a telegraphic tip from Texas, crept upon the gangster in his sleep.

SURROUNDED AT DAWN

Reinforced by local police, heavily-armed with machine guns, sawed-off shotguns and tear gas bombs, the federal operatives surprised Kelly, his wife Kathryn and two men companions in a ramshackle bungalow here shortly before dawn.

Kelly, his mane of black hair bleached a brilliant yellow, for one tense moment showed a flash of the foolhardy bravado that had made him America's most desperate criminal, and then, sawed-off shotguns in his midriff, surrendered placidly.

Eyes heavy with sleep, he struggled from his bed with a 45-caliber pistol in his hand to stare down the gaping channels of the officers' shotguns.

"Stick 'em up, Kelly," the officers barked.

Keely grinned sheepishly, hesitated a moment, and then the gun slipped from his hand to the floor.

"Okay, boys, I've been waiting for you all night," Kelly told the officers.

"Well, here we are," replied Detective Sergt. W. J. Raney.

MOTHER, GIRL CALLED TO TESTIFY

Fugitive's Family Is in Want; His "Other Woman" in Ease

The wife and daughter of John Donnelly, alleged jury-fixer, were scheduled to appear today to testify in Supreme Court in the disbarment proceedings against Lowell A. Mayberry, prominent Boston attorney.

There they are to face Helen F. Haggerty of Allston; who, called yesterday as a prosecution witness, testified that Donnelly paid her rent and still pays it, although he has been missing for months.

This expected encounter of wife and rival provides a dramatic interlude in the disbarment case in which efforts are being made to prove that Donnelly was hired by Mayberry to "fix" jurors.

Miss Haggerty yesterday retracted some of her testimony previously given before Dunbar F. Carpenter as a bar investigator and proved an unsatisfactory witness.

WIFE LIVES IN WANT

It was then announced by the prosecution that Donnelly's wife and daughter would be called. This was followed with the disclosure that they have been living humbly, in hunger and want, since Donnelly vanished, while Miss Haggerty lives in comparative luxury.

Atty. Mayberry's testimony given at the previous hearings before Carpenter, was revealed and showed that he denied employing Donnelly as a "fixer" although admitting that he used him as an investigator.

Donnelly was employed by him on a number of cases but not on "any of the seven cases in which fixing" allegedly occurred, Mayberry said at the time.

With only a few hours of prosecution testimony to be heard, Atty. Mayberry is ready to repeat that testimony at the present hearing, which is before Judge Henry T. Lummus, on the merits of the Carpenter report, his counsel announced.

TRIO SOUGHT CASH

Atty. Mayberry denied that he knew Miss Haggerty but said he had heard Donnelly speak of her

Curley Decries Ely's 'Light Treatment' of NRA Drive

Mayor Curley, back in Boston after a week's absence, delivered a slap at Gov. Ely today for the latter's 'light treatment' of the Roosevelt reconstruction program.

The mayor also indicated he might take a hand in the crowded mayoralty race and exert a little pressure which may cause more withdrawals before the deadline this evening.

Chicago was on the mayor's itinerary and he was there at the same time as Gov. Ely and when the governor attacked Frank A. Goodwin for his participation in the Brockton labor difficulties. Naturally the City Hall reporters were interested in that circumstance. But they were wholly unprepared for Mayor Curley's reply.

"I don't think the Goodwin attack was so vicious as the manner in which the governor treated so lightly the Roosevelt reconstruction program," he said.

Informed that Asst. Corp. Counsel Lawlor, one of his backers, had declared for Mansfield in the mayoralty fight, and that another of his supporters, Mrs. Mary E. Gallagher, was herself a candidate, Curley inquired of the newspapermen the last day for filing. He was informed "today."

"Five o'clock?"

"Yes."

"Still time for withdrawals?"

"Yes."

"There may be more before 5 o'clock."

The mayor expressed his disappointment at the State emergency finance board's failure to approve the $8,500,000 Huntington ave. subway project.

He conferred with Sec. Ickes in Chicago and later this week will go to Washington to discuss reconstruction projects.

BULLETINS

Mexico City, Sept. 26—A message from the port captain of Tampico, relayed to President Rodriguez by the military commandant of Monterey today, read:

"Five thousand are dead. The number of injured is incalculable."

Other estimates place the total life toll at a much less number, some figures being as low as 300.

It is not known when this message was filed. Americans are reported safe in other advices.

Brownsville, Tex., Sept. 26 (AP)—Eighty-seven persons were killed at Tampico when the Civil Hospital collapsed during the Sunday night hurricane, said reports today via Pan-Americans Airways wireless.

Los Angeles, Sept. 26 (INS)—Attorneys for David Hutton, Jr., choir singing husband of Aimee Semple McPherson-Hutton, evangelist of Angelus Temple, today were balked in an attempt to serve Mrs. Hutton by publication in Hutton's divorce action.

Superior Judge Harley Shaw denied Hutton's petition, holding that the required affidavit as to Mrs. Hutton's whereabouts was insufficient.

ATTACK ON JEWS AROUSES IRE OF YANKEES

Resurrection of Klan Propaganda Foils Pelly's Profits

William Dudley Pelley's "Silver Shirts," avowed successors of the Ku Klux Klan, have struck hard going in their membership drive in Massachusetts—at $10 per member—as was exclusively revealed by the Boston Evening American.

The reduced fee—the old Klan got $25 and up for a white cotton night shirt—has failed to be an attraction even in these days of the New Deal and the NRA and the gradual return to Prosperity.

OLD "SCARES" REVIVED

Nor would hard-headed New Englanders be stampeded by the former Boston newspaperman's brand of anti-Semitism. They did not like some of Mr. Hitler's antics in Germany and they were not impressed by similar talk, even if it came from a man in this country who wore a silver instead of a brown shirt.

"We shall soon have them as serfs on their own lands."

That the boast of an alleged secret conclave of American Jewish rabbis about the American people, according to one of the Pelley campaign screeds. It was not necessary for high Jewish dignitaries to denounce this as a lie out of the whole cloth, because the statement was never taken seriously in New England.

And the Silver Shirts got only a scowl, or perhaps a smile—but no $10 bills, when they announced that Bernard Baruch was the emperor of America, who chased his tool, "Frankie" Roosevelt, out of the White House during the important days of the London Economic Conference because he did not want to be bothered by even a puppet. The story had an old, familiar ring. It was a new version of the musty Menace and Klan lies—only funnier.

NO SYMPATHY IN N. E.

Nor did Pelley get either sympathy or followers when he raised the cry that he was being persecuted by some of the Eastern Jewish newspapers.

It may have been a long time ago that Boston and New England earned the title of "The Cradle of Liberty," but sentiment here has not changed sufficiently to look upon the Silver Shirt "scare" with anything but disgust or amusement.

Had Pelley and his aides taken the trouble to look at the record they would have found that Massachusetts was a poor territory for the spread of their gospel.

The old Klan had its heyday in this state from 1924 to 1926. During those years the hooded knights gained a fair sprinkling of members here, largely in the rural sections. They gained some foothold in Worcester and Springfield, but hardly any at all in Boston itself, where the genteel tradition of the Back Bay Brahmin and the robust ideas of fair play of the more recent Irish were both inimical to the preachings of Imperial Wizard Evans' mysterious secret empire.

Fiery crosses were burned then, but more often than not, the wizards and the kleagles went across the New Hampshire line or down to sparse sections of the Cape for their demonstrations.

HAS ACE HIDDEN

Mr. Pelley, having been born in Lynn and having worked on newspapers in various sections of New England as well as in Boston, might have been expected to realize that even in those days, when there was more money to be spent on the luxuries of prejudice, the Klan did rather a poor business here compared to its grosg in the "Bible Belt" of the Southwest.

But, apparently, he felt that he had a trump card in his deck that the Klan lacked. Probably he felt that it was strong enough to win him the "sucker money." How the Silver Shirts played this card will be told tomorrow in the Boston Evening American.

SHANNON SAYS HE SAVED LIFE OF URSCHEL

Texas Farmer Wilts During a Severe U. S. Cross-Examination

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 26 (AP)—An unreasoning fear of George (Machine Gun) Kelly and Albert Bates prevented R. G. Shannon from notifying officers while Charles F. Urschel, millionaire oil magnate, was held captive at his Texas farm, the middle-aged farmer testified as he resumed the witness stand for cross examination in the kidnaping trial today.

"I knew the boys (Kelly and Bates) had radios in their cars and that if I told on them they would come back and I would not be alive, my boy Armon would not be alive and maybe Mr. Urschel would not be alive today," said Shannon in answer to a government question.

SHANNON WILTS

Asst. U. S. Atty.-Gen. Joseph B. Keenan's cross-examination had Shannon "on the ropes." The Texan was the first of the ten defendants to testify and he wilted under the government's attack.

"Who was in charge of the guarding of Mr. Urschel?" Keenan asked.

"Well, Armon and I guarded him. I can't say who was in charge."

Keenan asked Armon to the stand. "Wouldn't Armon, your own flesh and blood, have done as you told him to do?"

"I guess so," replied Shannon.

"And weren't you responsible for what he did?"

"I'm not responsible for what any man does after he's 21 years old, even if he is my boy," the father said.

SON PROMISED $1500

Keenan asked Urschel to stand. Pointing to him, the prosecutor asked:

"Do you say you don't recognize that man?"

"No sir, I didn't recognize him until he came to my cell."

"When Bates and Kelly came back, didn't you ask them, 'Did you get the money?'" Keenan asked.

"Yes, sir, and Bates said, 'We got what we went after,' Shannon testified.

"Didn't you know that Armon had been promised $1500?" "Yes, sir."

"And didn't you tell them that they had not treated your son right because they were going to give him only $1500 out of the $200,000?"

REVISED RETAIL NRA CODE LOOMS

Compromise on Loss Limitation Clause Is Expected

Washington, Sept. 26 (INS)—A compromise plan to end the acute row over the proposed 10 per cent loss limitation provision of the code of fair competition for 1,500,000 retailers was under consideration today by NRA officials.

The consumers advisory board of the NRA, which has waged a strong fight against the proposal to prohibit retail sales for less than wholesale cost, plus 10 per cent, was urging a compromise.

BOARD AGREES TO CHARGE

Agreeing with retailers that cutthroat price competition is depressing business over the entire country, the consumers board was willing, with modifications, to have a provision written into the code preventing sales below invoice cost.

Mrs. Mary H. Rumsey, chairman of the advisory board, said it was standing firm against the 10 per cent provision, but would prevent below-cost selling.

The modifications considered in the completion of a possible compromise included a limitation upon the use of "leaders," under which nationally advertised articles are sold below cost as a means of stirring consumer interest.

RETAILERS UNYIELDING

Despite the demand for revision of the code, leading retailers who back the 10 per cent loss limitation plan showed no signs of yielding.

Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, was expected to reach a speedy decision on approval of the code or turn it back to Deputy Administrator A. D. Whiteside for revision.

President Roosevelt himself may decide the issue. The President was reported to be continuing his own study of the retail code as it embraces a far-reaching policy.

Ford Workers Out at Chester, Tool Men to Quit in Detroit

Protesting a notification which they said was received last week placing the factory on a four day schedule, the tsrikers demanded a five day wek and a minimum daily wage of $5. Strike leaders claim the men are being paid 50 cents an hour.

Detroit Tool Makers Vote to Walk Out

Detroit, Sept. 26 (AP)—Spokesmen for the Mechanics Educational Society, an organization of skiled automotive workers, announced members of the society or not, had been voted to take effect at noon today.

Jay J. Griffin, chairman of the committe said the strike would be caled in support of striking members in Flint, Mich., auto plants who have walked out charging units of the General Motors Corp. There are not conforming to provisions of the NRA auto code.

Griffen said the Mechanics Association several months ago had submitted a proposed code for tool and die makers to the national recovery administration, demanding a minimum wage of $1 an hour with a top wage of 1.50 an hour, and a 30-hour week. No result was forthcoming, he said.

He declared that he expected 30,000 workmen to be affected by the strike, saying the number included other skilled workmen who cannot continue to work while the ttool and die makers are out.

Ford's Detroit Office Profess Ignorance

Detroit, Sept. 26 (AP)—Officials of the general offices of the Ford Motor Co. here today said they had "heard nothing about" a reported walkout of several thousand employes at the Chester, Pa., Ford plant.

They said they had no comment to make on the situation, pending an investigation of the nature of the trouble.

$16,000 THEFT FROM STORAGE

Theft of 300 cases of cigarettes, valued at $16,000, from the Charles River Stores, a warehouse at 131 Beverly st., North End, was revealed today.

Apparently working leisurely, the thieves carted the big cases through a side door and loaded several trucks late last night or early this morning.

Entrance was gained by breaking a lock on a side door. Police expressed the opinion that a crew of thieves and several cars were used in the robbery.

BROOKLINE BOY FOUND SAFE

Sought through the night and all this morning following his disappearance after school yesterday, Francis Kearney, 8, of 48 Harvard st., Brookline, was found by police at Coolidge Corner this afternoon.

With him was 11-year-old Fred E. Crutchett of 23 Harvard st., with whom the younger boy said he spent the night in a shack near their homes although the Crutchett boy had not been reported missing. The boys breakfasted on pears, they said, and for lunch, for a change, had pears.

Young Kearney was feared kidnaped for a time after a neighborhood search until a policeman, and later a chum, reported seeing him near Coolidge Corner early today.

CUBA IN FEAR OF LANDING OF U. S. MARINES

Mediation Deadlock Increases Possibility of Intervention

Havana, Sept. 26 (INS)—With mediation of political controversies temporarily deadlocked, the Cuban government today prepared to meet sporadic outbursts of bombings and disorders, which officials feared might be aimed at foreigners.

The anticipated demonstrations were construed in government circles as the dying gasps of opposition elements in their attempt to overthrow President Grau San Martin by forcing American intervention.

Opposition leaders frankly conceded their inability to oust the present government by a revolution, since three attempts to do so already have failed.

The government, however, fears acts may be committed in Havana calculated to force landing of United States marines as a result of the tie-up of mediation negotiations.

Officials are preparing for any eventuality by bringing additional troops to Havana from nearby provinces.

Mediation attempts ran into a stone wall when Col. Fulgencio Batista and the students refused to allow President Grau San Martin to accept an opposition plan for choosing a new president.

Antonio Gonzales Mendoza, banker mediator, said:

"The oppositionists refuse to accept Grau San Martin because of his manner of coming into office. The negotiations have not ended, but are deadlocked, and the outlook is not very happy."

Mendoza declared he did not expect the present government to last out the year, and when asked why, stated it would be overthrown through a general collapse caused by economic conditions. He denied, however, that any revolution aimed against it would be successful.

"The army would probably win, but that would cause intervention," he predicted.

STRIKERS WIN IN SPRINGFIELD

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—Richard Neustadt, mediator for the National Labor Board reported today an agreement had been reached terminating the strike of several thousand employes of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company in East Springfield, Mass.

Under the terms of the agreement as reported by Neustadt the strikers will return to work immediately with a guarantee that no discrimination will be shown against them. The company management has agreed to recognize the representatives of the employes and a secret ballot under NRA supervision will be taken within two weeks to elect such representatives.

The agreement also provides further wage increases for employes now receiving less than 56 cents an hour and a mutual promise by employers and employes that work will continue pending arbitration on future matters in dispute.

New Process Keeps Byrd Food Fresh

Los Angeles, Sept. 26 (AP)—Thirty-five tons of fresh vegetables were en route to New York from the agricultural fields of Southern California today to provide Admiral Byrd with a portion of the food supply he will need for his two-year expedition to the South Pole.

A scientific process developed by Dr. Paul A. Bonequet, professor of chemistry of food and nutrition in the University of Southern California, will keep the vegetables preserved.

The process consists of eliminating the water content of the vegetables in such a manner that the food will retain the cellular structure and chemical composition.

Coat Sleeve Hides Grounds for Divorce

Chicago, Sept. 26—Mrs. Milton Perlman said she found the grounds for her divorce action in the lining of her husband's sleeve. It was his pay and she alleged in her suit that he had hidden it there instead of giving it to her to pay bills.

FORD IS FREE TO SELL AT COST

Washington, Sept. 26 (INS)—Recovery administration officers today would not comment offficially on the report that Henry Ford plans to offer an improved model at cost for a period, but it was pointed out he could do this without violating the automobile code.

The code, subscribed to by all other manufacturers, does not contain a single "unfair trade practice" provision. Thus a manufacturer may sell at cost, below cost or even give away his product.

The code does, however, contain a clause in which its signers state they "contemplate" the possibility it might become necessary to "supplement" the code with such additional provision as the President may approve.

$2 Tax on Whiskey Proposed for Study

Washington, Sept. 26—Experts of the joint congressional internal revenue committee have been instructed to give close study to a proposed tax of from $2 to $3 a gallon on 100 proof whiskey with a view to congressional consideration at the January session if prohibition is repealed.

The study is being made in conjunction with the recent order of President Roosevelt for the Treasury to prepare to recommend new liquor revenue rates to Congress.

Labor Board Meets on Brockton Strike

Brockton, Sept. 26—Peaceful picketing marked the strike of approximately 5000 shoe workers here today, while the full national labor board met at Washington to consider the local situation.

There was a general feeling that the Washington conference would iron out differences between manufacturers and the two unions and that an early settlement, perhaps before the week-end, would be effected.

Hurley Seeks Funds Paid by Parkers at Armory

State Treasurer Hurley began an investigation today to determine who has the auto parking concession on the grounds of the Comonwealth Armory, Allston,—and what has become of the fees paid by parkers.

Acting on a recent complaint made by Senator Joseph A. Langone that the armory grounds were used as a parking space for motorists, attending games at Braves Field, Treasurer Hurley wrote Adjutant-General Agnew asking whether a concession for parking had been granted and the present whereabouts of the money collected, if any.

Hurley said his records from the adjutant's department show no income from such a source this year or last.

If there is a fund extant from use of the armory grounds as a parking space—and it is alleged by Senator Langone that thousands of motorists paid to park there—it is apparently illegal money.

State House correspondents, making inquiry at the attorney-general's office, learned today that former Atty.-Gen. Jay R. Benton, ruled in 1926 that use of armory grounds for paid parking was illegal even though funds raised were used for the benefit of the company occupying the armory.

At the time of Langone's complaint, Col. Porter Chase, aide to Gen. Agnew, gave it as his opinion that money received probably was being turned into the company fund. Hurley now wants the facts.

Benjamin Griffen, Underwriter, Dies

New York, Sept. 26—Benjamin Griffen, father-in-law of Bernard M. Baruch, is dead at his home here. H was 87.

CODES' EARLY HOURS TO EASE WIFE'S TOIL

First Lady Asks That Son Be 'Let Alone'; Greets Notables

Housewives should profit under the NRA and the codes through added help given them in the households by husbands, sons, daughters and other working members who get home earlier.

Smilingly, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt made this statement today in her suite at the Statler Hotel, following an informal reception given her by leading Greater Boston women and preceding her appearance at a Salvation Army luncheon in the Chamber of Commerce building.

Husbands, sons and daughters who profit through shorter hours under the code and who do not then help with the housework when they arrive home earlier are "just plain selfish," said Mrs. Roosevelt.

SEES TWO SONS.

The First Lady of the Land was an early riser today and had breakfast in her suite with her two sons, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., freshman at Harvard, and James Roosevelt, who sails at midnight from New York for a six weeks' tour of Europe with his wife, the former Betsy Cushing of Brookline.

Also at the breakfast was Robert A. Delano, son of Lyman Delano, a Roosevelt cousin and a roommate of the six-foot-four-inch "Junior" at Harvard.

Following the breakfast, Mrs. Roosevelt received in her suite a train of callers, including Mrs. Bradbury F. Cushing, wife of the Statler manager; Mr. and Mrs. John Cutter, old friends of the Roosevelts; Miss Mary Ward, newly-appointed immigration commisser, and Mrs. Gaspar G. Bacon, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor.

IN GRACIOUS INTERVIEW

Others included Mrs. Charles F. Hurley, wife of the state treasurer, and Secretary Hurley's two secretaries, Miss Catherine McCloskey and Miss Helen Delay; Brigadier Kathleen Erckle of the Salvation Army, Col. Joseph Atkinson, commander of the New England forces of the Sallies, and Mrs. George R. Fearing of Beacon st. and Dedham, chairman of the women's reception committee and of the Greater Boston advisory committee of the Salvation Army.

Following all these greetings, Mrs. Roosevelt, smiling and very gracious, ushered the reporters into the suite.

"LEAVE BOY ALONE"

At almost the first question, Mrs. Roosevelt's smile left her face. This was when she was asked if she would detail what she purchased in the way of furnishings for her Harvard freshman son's rooms.

"No, I can't answer anything like that," she said. "Please

Home in Brookline Is Ransacked

Making himself very much at home, even to the point of having donned one of the absent master's suits of clothing, Preston F. Bartlet, who gave an address in Dudley st., Roxbury, was found today in the house of Bradlee Smith, 45 Willow Crescent st., Fisher Hill, Brookline.

Charged with burglary in the daytime, the intruder was held in $1000 for hearing, Oct. 2.

HULTMAN BARS ALL STRIKERS

Police Commissioner Hultman today denied a report that the Boston policemen who went on strike 14 years ago and lost their jobs would be reinstated.

"The rumor that the police commissioner is sympathetically inclined toward the reinstatement, as members of the Boston police department, of those who deserted their posts of duty in 1919, is absolutely without foundation in fact," he said.

The commissioner said he would let the civil service list of eligibles for promotion to police captain expire today without picking any captains from it. That he intended doing this had been apparent for some time.

The reinstatement rumor was based largely on a statement by State Sen. Edward C. Carroll of South Boston, himself a striking policeman, who said responsible businessmen were demanding that the many vacancies in the police department be filled with experienced officers.

The wave of crime and racketeering was cited as a reason for restoring the former policemen.

The Boston Social Club, composed of more than 500 former Boston policemen, will hold an executive committee meeting tonight at Hibernian Hall, Roxbury, to discuss the situation. Members will meet Thursday at the same place. Many of the striking officers are engaged in police work elsewhere.

'2-GUN' TO CALL ON MAYOR

James H. ("Two Gun") Baker, Quincy's widely known motorcycle sleuth, telephoned Mayor Ross today and promised to pay the latter a visit to discuss his status Thursday or Friday.

"Two Gun" obtained a leave of absence a short time ago. His whereabouts then became a mystery. His wife and six children complained they had no funds and efforts to find Baker were begun.

The telephone call resulted from a statement yesterday by the mayor that he would give Baker until the end of this week to get in touch with him. After that he might not be nice to "Two Gun."

Now that Baker has more or less re-appeared, he has an excellent chance of being restored to the good graces of everybody, provided he consents to go right back to work to earn money for his family, Mayor Ross said.

"His job's still his if he goes to work," said the mayor.

JUDGE LOWELL INQUIRY IS BEGUN HERE

Two Congressmen Arrive to Study Crawford Case Details

Investigation relative to impeachment charges brought in Congress against Judge James A. Lowell of federal court was begun in Boston today by two members of the House judiciary sub-committee appointed in Washington.

The committee members arrived in Boston yesterday to look into the charges, growing out of Judge Lowell's refusal to honor extradition of George Crawford, a Negro and alleged slayer of two white women in Virginia.

Crawford is still in East Cambridge jail, awaiting decision of the United States Supreme Court on the Judge Lowell ruling. The United States Circuit Court of Appeals overturned Judge Lowell's decision, and counsel for Crawford then carried the case to the highest court.

On the committee are Rep. Gordon Browning (D) of Tennessee, chairman, and Reps. Gregory (D) of Kentucky, Condon (D) of Rhode Island, Weaver (R) of North Carolina, Perkins (R) of New Jersey and Beck (R) of Pennsylvania, but only Browning and Randolph Perkins came to Boston.

During the several days the committee members are in town they will question what Crawford case witnesses that are available and probably 20 prominent members of the Boston Bar Association.

MAY CALL JUDGE

The committee members may also call before them, it is expected, Judge Lowell himself.

At the end of that time, it was predicted today by friends of the federal justice, the investigation will be dropped because the impeachment proceedings are understood to have been brought on a misapprehension in Washington that Judge Lowell had declared the Negro could not get a fair trial in Virginia.

What Judge Lowell did point out in refusing to honor Crawford's extradition, however, was that Negroes are not allowed to serve on juries in Loudoun county, Va., and that if he were convicted of murder the United States Supreme Court would rule a mistrial on this ground.

Crawford, who was captured in Boston, was indicted on the charge of slaying Mrs. Agnes Ilsley and her white maid in Loudoun county on Jan. 13, 1932, and Judge Lowell's decision was made last May.

CONFER WITH DODGE

Soon after their arrival, the congressional committee members conferred with Atty. Robert G. Dodge, president of the Boston Bar Association, a veteran barrister in Boston.

While in Boston, it is understood, the Congressmen will also look into a complaint made by an unidentified person regarding Judge Lowell's conduct of the famed Jamaica ginger case, involving Max Reisman and Harry Grossman, and out of which there was no conviction.

The committee members were in conference in the federal building today and while there were visited by Congressmen John J. Douglass and John W. McCormack, both of Boston.

Pittsburgh, Sept. 26. Mrs. Mary Marcij didn't wait for the courts to punish her son, Rudolph, 15, after he confessed at a hearing to stealing some tools. She slapped him resoundingly on the face. The mother was ejected from the courtroom, the son held for trial.

HARBOR LOCKED BY FOG; PLANE LANDS SAFE

Only Boat That Sails Runs Ashore; Haze Blankets City

Deep-throated fog horns and clanging bell buoys were the only indications of life in the harbor today. It was the second consecutive morning that the roadstead was shrouded by impenetrable fog.

A string of freighters and other craft were riding at anchor in President's Roads, waiting for the fog to lift before they ventured up the harbor. Other craft were made fast to piers and wharves, unable to put to sea in the mist.

Vehicular traffic was slowed down considerably by poor visibility. At the East Boston airport there was no activity.

SCHOONER AGROUND

One of the few craft that defied the elements, the two-masted fishing schooner Alicia, out of Gloucester for the Boston Fish Pier with 24,000 pounds of mackerel, came to grief when she ran aground on Nix's Mate, one of the harbor islands.

Joseph Piscatello, her 19-year-old skipper, told Capt. Frank Holbrook, of the City Point Coast Guard station, that he missed one of the channel buoys in the pea-soup fog. He and the 12 members of his crew were in no danger although the ship's cargo shifted a bit.

The Alicia was due to be floated on the high tide with the Coast Guard standing by.

The fog that paralyzed the harbor also rolled in over the city. Subway passengers, riding in from Cambridge this morning, were barely able to make out the Back Bay as a brownish, serrated streak of church steeples against a gray slate of sky and river as their trains shot out of the tunnel and onto the West Boston bridge. The Harvard bridge was barely visible as a charcoal streak against the gray, mist-veiled Charles.

ONE PLANE ARRIVES

Planes at the Boston airport were grounded but Freddie Dunn of Cambridge, coming from Maine, did manage to bring his Whirlwind-powered Stearman in to the airport by skimming roof tops.

The weather man, meanwhile, said that it would be cloudy all day, with showers probably tonight and tomorrow. It will be cooler tomorrow, he said. He announced that the humidity reading had climbed to 98 per cent at 10 a. m.

There is a storm over northern Minnesota that has decided to visit the Greater Boston area, he said, but the Tampico disturbance has headed inland to the south and is breaking up. Temperatures were in the low 60's during the forenoon.

Officer Finds B.&A. Is Only a 'Ghost'

Special Officer Timothy Callahan went to East Cambridge district court today to fight it out with the Boston & Albany railroad. He found he was fighting with a ghost.

Callahan wanted to charge the Boston & Albany with blocking Binney st., Cambridge, for more than five minutes with a freight train.

But when the case was called, Callahan told Judge Green he had learned something about corporate organization since he filed his complaint.

"A lawyer tells me there's no Boston & Albany railroad as far as the law's concerned," he said. "I'd like to change my complaint to the New York Central."

The case was marked up for hearing Friday.

Greenbay, Wis., Sept. 26. Charles Nachtwey's opinion of the owl's wisdom was at zero today, for, he said, one flew into his face while he was driving down a crowded street. His car crashed into two parked machines. He crawled unhurt from the wreckage.

'PROVE IT,' CRY OF RUM BOARD TO SAWYER

Action Is Promised if His Vice Charges Can Be Upheld

Proof of his claims that "shocking conditions" prevail in many licensed beer places of Boston, Worcester and Springfield were demanded of Rep. Roland D. Sawyer of Ware today by the State Alcoholic Beverages Commission.

The clergyman solon charged that girls as young as 14 became "hilariously drunk" and that others carried on in equal disregard for the law, but he gave no specific data as to times and places.

BOARD PROMISES ACTION

Commissioners William A. L. Bazeley and John P. Buckley, two of the three members, concurred in statements that they would like to know more of the details in order to stop the violations.

The third member, Chairman William P. Hayes of Springfield, could not be reached.

Rep. Sawyer said he heard of the conditions during hearings before the special commission on liquor legislation, of which he is a member.

"In the course of the hearings," he said, "charges were made about conditions in Boston and Worcester, which are shocking, and only a little less so in Springfield.

"A committee of three citizens of the state testified that two of its members, by personal investigation, had ascertained these conditions. Upon cross examination by myself they named localities and convinced me they were telling the truth.

WOMAN ALMOST NAKED

"They charged that hard liquor was being sold, that the places of sale were entered only after passing muster before bouncers, that within were stalls, completely shielded from observation, unlighted, and in which were persons of both sexes; that in one place they caught glimpses of men and women in a hilarious condition going through a form of dance, that in another place a practically naked woman was running about to get her shoes shined, and that in practically all places they saw drunken girls as young as 14 years of age."

When the matter was referred to Commissioner Buckley he said:

"As one member of the commission I would like to know where there are such places and I feel sure that the state commission will act at once to put a stop to such violations of the law."

Commissioner Bazeley said:

"All they have to do is to bring those things to our attention and we will take prompt action."

Soft Pedal on Bonus Legion's Program

Chicago, Sept. 26. An agenda of 100 subjects ranging from disability payments to fighting crime has been announced for the American Legion's national convention in Chicago next week.

National officials of the legion expressed belief that demands for payment of the bonus, which sent thousands of veterans marching on Washington two years ago, would enter the programme only slightly. They said a resolution asking "payment of the adjusted service certificates as soon as governmental finances permit" probably would be adopted.

Harvard Student Names Rival in Divorce Suit

Newark, N. J., Sept. 26 (INS). Mrs. Mary M. Dixon Longfellow, 22, of Paterson, today held permission to defend a divorce action brought by Charles T. Longfellow, also 22, a graduate student at Harvard, who filed suit charging his wife with infidelity.

Permission to defend the suit was granted by Dougal Herr, advisory master in chancery, who also granted permission to Franklin A. Dean, named by Longfellow, to intervene.

The advisory master was expected to render decision today on Mrs. Longfellow's plea to enter a counter suit for divorce on grounds of extreme cruelty.

Affidavits were presented by Longfellow's counsel, one by Lewis M. Dixon, father of Mrs. Longfellow, who said his daughter had gone to Reno, Nev., last spring for a divorce but "changed her mind" and returned. Dixon also stated Mrs. Longfelow told him she had gone on an overnight motor trip with Dean but that they had occupied separate hotel rooms.

An affidavit by Charles F. Longfellow, father of the plaintiff, stated that while his son was sudying at the University of Pennsylvania Mrs. Longfellow had stayed in a New York hotel and her luggage was held for non-payment of the bill. Later, the affiant stated, his son received a bill for a room occupied by "Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Longfellow" and investigation disclosed the room had been occupied by a man and woman. Longfellow asserted his son had not left Philadelphia at the time.

Believe It or Not Butterfly Sings in Dry R. I. Town

Hopkinton, R. I., Sept. 26 (AP). A singing butterfly, about as big as a half dollar, the first to make its appearance in these parts has eluded all attempts to capture it.

Attention was attracted to it when a farmer who lives on the Boston Post rd. heard a gentle humming noise outside his bedroom window.

He looked out and the humming, although faint, seemed to change distinctly to a tune carrying all the elements of harmony. Then he noticed the butterfly, which made a great fluttering of its wings on a twig nearby.

Being something of an entomologist, he decided to capture the insect, but his efforts were futile. But every day when the sun shone, for a week, the butterfly appeared outside his window, emitting the humming music.

Yellowish orange in color, with black trimmings and a few white dots on the wing tips. The "song," for all its humming undertones, is bell-like in its clarity.

The farmer unsuccessfully has attempted to convince his neighbors of the truth of his story, and, to make the situation worse, the butterfly refuses to sing when anyone else is around.

Hopkinton was the only town in Rhode Island to vote "dry" in the referendum on repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

STATE BUY NOW CAMPAIGN ORDERED

An important meeting of the Consumers' Committee of the State Recovery Board will be held today to determine its course in the buying campaign scheduled to start Oct. 1.

Dean Everett Lord of Boston University, chairman, will preside. Speakers include Miss Margaret Weisman, Mrs. Carl L. Schrader and P. J. King. Prof. Sumner Slichter, of Harvard Business School, will outline a plan to promote the buying campaign and at the same time guard against undue increases in prices.

The State Recovery Board has telegraphed chairmen of NRA committee in the 355 cities and towns of the Commonwealth. The messages, signed by Chairman Edward A. Filene, read:

"Stand by for opening of National Buying Campaign to support NRA program. Line up your committee for Oct. 1, when first guns will be fired. Be ready for immediate action on word from General Johnson. Will advise as to final details. Meanwhile, objective is 'buy to limit of prudent means, and buy under the Blue Eagle'."

State headquarters officials assert that reports of improved conditions under the NRA continue to be received. Most of them come from smaller towns, where accurate results are obtainable more quickly.

It was announced that Mrs. Mary Horgan, Suffolk County chairman, will head the State women's division for two weeks.

BRITISH AIM AT U. S. AIR FLEET

Washington, Sept. 26 (US)—Virtually every fighting plane of the United States army, navy and marine corps would be outlawed under the British disarmament proposal at Geneva, to abolish "bombing planes."

All others, save a few transport and training types, are fitted for bombing and, in the opinion of high government officials, would be included in the proposed ban.

The British proposal is seen here as a duplication of tactics at the 1921 Washington naval conference, when the United States was induced to scrap the cream of its navy while Great Britain and other nations sacrificed nothing.

Nashua Shoe Help Given Wage Increase

Nashua, N. H., Sept. 26—Shoe workers in two factries have been awarded increases in wages of 20 to 50 per cent in an arbitration decision made today by Edwin Newdick of Boston.

About 500 shoe workers are affected by the decision. All are employed by Lasell & Fleisher. The factories have a combined daily capacity of about 8000 pairs of women's novelty shoes.

O'Brien Veto Urged to Keep N.Y. 'Change

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, informed Mayor O'Brien today that if he would veto the special taxes on brokers he would recommend abandonment of the plan for moving trading to New Jersey.

Miss Radio in Boston With Incog Pierced

Blonde Diana Chase, Boston beauty, hailed as "Miss Radio of 1933" is none other than the former Miss Beatrice Bolan of Dorchester, former Hotel Copley-Plaza newsstand girl, of a few years ago. At the time of her employment at the Back Bay hotel Miss Chase received several offers from theatrical producers but passed them all up to follow her studies at Tufts Medical School. Even Florenz Ziegfeld, famed for his selection for beauties offered Miss Bolan a place in one of the Follies. At any rate the Miss Radio of 1933 is shown with her trophy and today she visited her family in Boston.

Diana Chase, beautiful blonde soprano, who won the title of "Miss Radio, 1933" from 125 others at Madison Sq. Garden, New York, came home to Boston today—to be Beatrice Bolan again for a day.

For Diana Chase is really Beatrice Bolan of 19 Stonehurst st., Dorchester, who used to charm Harvard youths and others—even Flo Ziegfeld—as the Venus of the Copley-Plaza newsstand.

NEVER HEARD OF DIANA

This the Boston Evening American established after Miss Chase had refused on the telephone from New York yesterday to reveal her true identity, saying her success was her own and that her family had frowned on a stage career.

Perhaps she did some thinking after the telephone conversation. At any rate, she came from New York overnight, leaving her popular acclaim behind her, and early this morning joined her parents at their summer home in Billerica.

"I filled their gas tank for them," said a garageman. "I've known the Bolans for years. Beatrice, who sure is beautiful, arrived from New York this morning and went away on this trip with them. She's going back to New York tonight."

He had never heard of "Diana Chase."

Beatrice — or Diana — attended Wellesley College, Miss Winsor's School, the New England Conservatory of Music and Tufts Medical School. But her contacts with stage folk, who were impressed with her beauty, drew her eventually to the stage.

After spurning numerous offers, including one from Ziegfeld, the newsstand girl consented to take a part in "The Right Girl" at the old Selwyn Theater, insisting, however, on using a stage name, Diana Chase.

It was some time before her parents knew of her sideline. Even her fellow employes were amazed to find out about it after she had kept her stage appearance secret for several performances.

Nobody took her seriously as a newsstand girl after that. A career lay before her and she went to New York where later she turned to radio because her voice assured her of continuous employment.

even in these marvelous days when every chemist knows that re-arrangement of the atoms might change any base metal into pure gold.

Thus far, no scientist has suggested that he could create THOUGHT. That, after all, is the only thing of importance in this corner of the universe. Without it nobody could investigate or discuss the atom.

President Roosevelt suggests that the price of steel rails be cut to promote buying and give employment. Steel men will oblige, if possible, although raising wages, reducing hours and working days, and reducing prices, at the same time, presents a problem. The late Judge Gary, head of "Big Steel," thought he did well, when he abolished the 12-hour day. In the language of the stage, "He hadn't seen nothin' yet."

The worst news of the day comes from Manchuria where brigandage, war and hunger are complicated by an outbreak of the deadly bubonic plague. It has already killed 500 in one locality. Our health department can be trusted to keep it out, but why not spend some of those unlimited R. F. C. millions in really getting rid of rats and ground squirrels that carry plague. It must be done sometime for safety. The government might establish a "Pied Piper" division of rat catchers.

On Sunday a British boat attained a speed of more than 95 miles an hour. The surface of the water will provide the ideal mode of surface transportation, when men know how to use it. Water is a natural "ball-bearing surface," every drop rolling over the others without friction. When men know how to design the boats and apply power they will cross the Atlantic on the surface in 30 hours easily.

New Jersey Banker Is Dead in Boston

Thomas Wilcox Stephens, 67, one of the founders of the Bank of Montclair, N. J., and its president since 1912, died today from a heart attack in a Boston hospital.

He was president of the Anthony and Scovill Co., film manufacturers, which later became known as Ansco films. He was a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York for three years.

OFFICIALS HOPE FOR NEW CLUE TO CAHILL

Hunt for the missing shoes of Peggy McCarthy, 10-year-old victim of Somerville's strangle murder, was pushed today in Middlesex and Essex Counties, in a move to place the locale of her murder and possibly, reveal some new clue that might lead to the capture of Harry P. Cahill, alleged slayer.

With officials of both Middlesex and Essex engaged in the seemingly fruitless quest at a solution, the exact murder spot has not yet been determined, nor has any trace been found of Cahill since he abandoned his sedan at Silver lake, Wilmington, more than two weeks ago.

GRIFFIN ON HUNT

Reports that Dist. Atty. Warren L. Bishop of Middlesex, and Dist. Atty. Hugh A. Cregg of Essex were at odds over a solution of the case were scoffed at today by both officials.

The latter explained his assignment of State Detective Richard J. Griffin as his means of furnishing help on the case. Griffin, he said, has many friends in Essex county, some of whom might come forward with information when they learn he is working on the case.

The same idea explained the move of placing Lieut. Daniel M. O'Connell, of Somerville in charge of the hunt for Cahill, technically over his chief and other high officials.

While the question of the murder location continues to exist, the probe will be pushed jointly by both counties, both prosecutors said.

With all the present tips from New England sources run down, police believed today that Cahill had successfully left this section and made his way to the western part of the country.

Circulars that were delayed through government regulations on the issuance of fingerprints, did not reach that section of the country until a few days ago.

SURRENDER SEEN

When enough interest is aroused throughout the entire country it will be a matter of but a short time before Cahill will appear at some point, the investigators hopefully predicted.

Meanwhile, the family of Cahill, including his elderly parents, his Lawrence brother and his three Somerville sisters, persisted in the belief that the sought man is dead.

"His body must be lying somewhere between Somerville and Lawrence," was the comment of Thomas P. Cahill, 71, the missing man's father.

Cahill divided his time between his home in Lawrence and the home of a sister in Somerville, the latter not a great distance from the home of the McCarthy girl.

Kidnap Tale Starts Police Argument

Investigation of the story of Rosario M. Duhamel, Nashua, N. H., insurance agent, that he had been robbed and kidnaped by two armed bandits, was undertaken by Nashua police today. He claims he was forced to drive to a point near the Medford-Somerville line, where they abandoned him.

The New Hampshire police entered the case late last night, after Somerville and Medford police argued several hours over jurisdiction. They finally decided that Nashua police should handle the case, and sent Duhamel back there.

New York, Sept. 26 (INS)—A woman went to the roof of a tenement on 56th st. today and stumbled on the body of a man about 25 who had been shot to death. Bruises on the left knuckle indicated there had been a struggle. One shot was fired into the chest.

The victim was believed to have been a sailor, as in his pocket was a letter from a girl in Stamford, Ct., addressed to J. G. Gregovoric, care of the U. S. S. Illinois, anchored in Hudson river.

FOUR QUIT MAYORAL RACE, SHATTUCK FOR NICHOLS

Return of Curley Expected to Influence Withdrawal of Others as Flag Drops On Filing Papers

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Endorsing the candidacy of former Mayor Malcolm Nichols, Dr. Ray H. Shattuck, one of the 11 Democrats who took out mayoralty papers, today got out of the contest.

Dr. Shattuck is one of the seven Democratic candidates who attended the meeting called at the Parker House a few nights ago by Chairman John W. Newman, of the Democratic City Committee. He was one of the three candidates who told Newman he would back the strongest Democrat, if the matter could be arranged. No plan was agreed upon.

HARMONY LACKING

Shattuck states that he has more than twice the required 3000 signatures to put him on the ballot, and had financial backing assured from three men who assisted him in his unsuccessful fight for the office for secretary of state to put up a good battle.

"There is no such thing as party harmony among the Democrats in Boston," Shattuck declared. "I am convinced that Nichols is going to win. Foley can't and the rest of the Democratic candidates can't any more than I could. There are enough Democrats going to stay in the fight to put Nichols over.

"And I am not so sure that's going to be a bad thing. I think he made a reasonably good mayor. After all we know he is capable of running the city and we don't know if any of the others are. He has had the experience.

"Incidentally, I think that all good Democrats ought to pass a vote of thanks to Chairman John W. Newman of the Democratic city committee. He worked hard to bring order out of chaos and it is surely not his fault that his efforts failed.

ON SPOT FOR NICHOLS

"Does all this mean that you are going to back the candidacy of former Mayor Nichols?" Dr. Shattuck was asked.

"Well, brother, you are putting me right on the spot," was the reply. "Yes, you can say that I endorse Nichols' candidacy."

The list of prospective mayoral aspirants is expected to be further thinned out before the day is over, as reports are current that several candidates have failed to secure enough names on their nomination papers.

Also, the arrival in the city today of Mayor Curley from Chicago, may decide the fate of a few more, who are on the city payroll. Among these are Street Commissioner Theodore A. Glynn and Mrs. Mary E. Gallagher, wife of a member of the fire department and herself an employe of the public welfare office.

LAWLOR QUESTION UP

Should the mayor elect to take a hand there are a few more problems confronting him. Asst. Corp. Counsel Henry E. Lawlor, one of the mayor's lieutenants, is publicly out for Frederick W. Mansfield. And according to reports, Lawlor backed up his action by sending a letter to Mayor Curley asking whether he, Lawlor, is still on the salary list or out.

Another indication of the scramble of the Curley subordinates to get in position to "go places" during the next four years is seen in the logical deduction that Asst. Dist. Atty. Daniel J. Gillen, for years a close friend of the Mayor, will support his chief, Dist. Atty. William J. Foley.

There are some who remember that the Mayor said recently that he had tried to name a successor once, failed, and would not repeat the performance. But many others believe that the Mayor will get into the fight, probably revealing the name of the candidate of his choice.

FUR MAY FLY

If the latter prediction is borne out, the fur is expected to fly around City Hall and some candidates will get out or find themselves looking for new jobs.

Thus far six candidates have qualified for places on the ballot by filing the signatures of 3000 voters, required by law to secure the nomination for mayor.

They are: State Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., Judge Michael H. Sullivan, Atty. Frederick W. Mansfield, Dist. Atty. William J. Foley, froner Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell and former Mayor Malcolm F. Nichols.

Chairman John W. Newman of the Democratic City Committee, stated today that his organization, with representatives in every ward in the city, will endorse the strongest Democratic candidate to win.

He declared that he has an open mind on the endorsement and that this is true of the great majority of his committee.

"Men who think they are bigger than their party," he asserted, "are going to get the surprise of their lives."

He made the prediction that the Democrats now lined up with Nichols will before long be "on the run" back to the camp of the Democracy.

NOON RALLIES PLANNED

Frederick W. Mansfield has engaged campaign headquarters at No. 21 School st., where noon rallies will be held daily. Mansfield plans to start off with a bang next Sunday with a meeting of women voters. The quarters seat from 800 to 900.

Daniel H. Coakley's blistering attack upon the Boston Bar Association will be broadcast tonight over Staton WNAC from 8 to 8:15. Coakley contends that the Bar Association is not using "Queensberry rules" in making public their opposition to his petition for reinstatement to the bar at this time. He will call up the other mayoralty candidates to say publicly whether they approve the association's methods.

Thirty-one citizens of Boston, it may be seen, have now received votes in the interesting postcard balloting. This is three times the number of actual and avowed candidates whose names were printed upon the postcard ballot.

Chairman William A. Reilly of the school committee, and Daniel H. Coakley, whose names are not upon the ballot, received 20 and 15 votes, respectively, in the day's total while Malcom E. Nichols, whose name is not on the ballot and who is a Republican, received 76 counters from the registered Democratic voters. Sen. Henry Parkman, another registered Republican, continued to find favor among the voters.

LAUDED BY FINIGAN

The voters are reminded again of the blank space at the bottom of the ballot. They may write the name of any candidate favored by them in this blank space, and the votes so cast will be duly tabulated and published.

Sen. Joseph Finnegan declines to enter the formal contest for the mayoralty, and he sent this statement to the Boston Evening American:

"Congratulations upon this Straw Ballot Test Election.

"The Boston Evening American is performing a creditable public service.

"This seems to be the only possible way out of a muddled situation which, unless it is solved, will be very serious to the best interests of the city of Boston in the next four years."

Mark your postcard ballots. Drop them into the nearest mailbox. Watch for the results. They will be published daily in the Boston Evening American and on Sundays in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

HOW TO RECAPTURE BEAUTY

Good looks are often a matter of good health. Sparkling eyes and a smooth complexion are outward signs of an abundant vitality.

To be charming, conserve your health. Guard against constipation. It so often brings wrinkles, sallow skins, dull eyes, pimples.

Try the pleasant "cereal way" to protect yourself from constipation. Science has proved that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron, which helps build up the blood.

The "bulk" in this delicious cereal is much like that of lettuce. How much safer than abusing your system with pills and drugs — so often habit-forming.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Film Eloper

SCREEN STAR SECRET BRIDE

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Los Angeles, Sept. 26—Everything comes in threes. The third elopement within a week is that of "Boots" Mallory and William Cagney.

Immediately after the ceremony performed in the civil court at Tia Juana, by Judge Alexandra Batani, Saturday, young Cagney and his bride went into hiding for an uninterrupted honeymoon.

The elopement was not as unexpected as the sudden marriages of Sally Eilers and Harry Joe Brown, and Jean Harlow to Hal Rosson. Miss Mallory, formerly in the George White Scandals and the Follies, was brought to Hollywood by the Fox company. Her first role was in "Walking Down Broadway." She is now free lancing.

Woman Friend's Gossip in Texas Betrays Hiding Place of Desperado and Wife in Hideout

shackle the prisoner, who showed no trace of fear and laughed as he boasted:

"Sure, I'm Kelly."

MANACLED IN SLEEP

He had stumbled into the room after officers had forced their way quietly into the bungalow and discovered J. R. Tichnor, owner of the place, and his brother-in-law, S. E. Travis, asleep in the front room. Quickly the officers manacled the men before they awoke.

Suddenly the officers heard a noise, and Kelly, bleary of eye, stumbled into the darkened room from a rear bedroom, where he was asleep with his attractive wife.

His titian-haired wife, clad in a flaming negligee, followed him into the room, clinging to the desperado tearfully before the officers took the quartet, heavily manacled and guarded by automobile loads of machine gun-armed policemen, to jail.

"Chief," he was quoted as saying, "I' mnot talking about anything."

As Chief Lee walked into his cell, he demanded:

"Who are you?"

"I'm Chief Lee," was the reply.

"Give me a light," said Kelly.

Noticing the fugitive's yellow hair, Lee asked:

"When did you dye your hair?"

"It's been that way a long time," Kelly answered.

WIFE WORE RED WIG

His pretty wife talked, though reluctantly.

Kelly and she had been in hiding here since Saturday, she said.

They rode and walked about the streets of Memphis freely, making no effort to conceal their identity, she said.

"We had a big party at the house Saturday night and then again Sunday night," she said. "Nobody disturbed us. We had a lot of fun."

She declared she wanted to go back to Oklahoma City immediately and save her parents, R. G. "Boss" Shannon, lean-jawed Texas rancher, and his wife from "taking the rap."

Shannon, his wife, Harvey Bailey, Albert Bates and six other defendants are on trial there for the Urschel abduction.

Urschel was taken to the Shannon ranch and held prisoner there while the abductors negotiated for the $200,000 ransom.

"It wasn't ma and pa's fault," Mrs. Kelly declared. "I put George up to it. I told him our ranch would be a swell place to hold Urschel. They couldn't help it and I want to get them out of their trouble."

At the jail every possible precaution was taken to prevent escape. The stone structure bristled with armament. Machine guns were placed at vantage points commanding all approaches. Heavily-armed guards patrolled the area. Four machine guns were set up in the corridor of the cell in which Kelly was incarcerated.

Kelley's Captors to Get $15,000

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 26 (INS)—A reward of $15,000 will be paid to the captors of George "Machine Gun" Kelly and his wife in Memphis, Tenn.

Charles F. Colcord, Oklahoma City capitalist, called a meeting of citizens here last week and it was decided to raise that amountand offer it as a reward for the capture of the pair.

Ten thousand dollars will be paid for the capture of Kelly, $5000 for the apprehension of his wife.

Slip of Woman's Tongue Reveals Kelly Hideout

Chicago, Sept. 26 (INS)—An unguarded slip of the tongue by a Miss Arnold today was given as the circumstance that led to the arrest of George ("Machine Gun") Kelly in Memphis, according to Melvin Purvis, federal agent.

Miss Arnold, according to Purvis, is a close friend of Mrs. Kelly. Remaining several days with the Kellys in Memphis, Miss Arnold returned to Oklahoma and talked. Federal agents grilled her until she revealed the hideout.

Kelly's Trial Pushed for Earliest Date

Credit for Kely's apprehension was given to William A. Roper, 35-year-old agent of the Bureau of Investigation, recently transfered from San Francisco to Birmingham.

It was disclosed that so far as the records of the department go Kelly is not wanted for complicity in the Kansas City depot shootings, with which his name has been linked.

leave that poor boy alone. It's going to be difficult enough for him."

Her smile, returned, however, when she was asked if she thought a woman would ever become President of the United States.

"People ask me that question every little while," she said. "In fact, it is the most common question I get, and at the same time it's probably the most foolish. How anyone could prophesy anything like that is beyond me."

A question relative to the recent death of Ike Hoover, chief usher at the White House again faded the smile.

"It was quite a shock to us to have it come at that time because Ike Hoover was very kind to us," said Mrs. Roosevelt. "It is a very serious personal loss a well as an official loss. We feel it very deeply."

About the health of herself, the President and all the family, she was more cheerful. The President, she said, did not have a cold, but was tired and had accepted advice to take a rest.

"We're all very strong," she assured, "and we're all very well. We have lots of health."

She has no set formula for health, she said, except to exercise ordinary care and common sense in living.

The First Lady was not certain as to whether she would see her son and his wife aff tonight on the Europa for overseas, but James settled the question for her.

"Don't worry," he said. "I'll have them all tucked away for the night before the sailing."

Mrs. Roosevelt said she would take an afternoon plane from Boston for Newark, on her way to Washington.

U. S. to Replace Broken 'Specs'

Washington, Sept. 26—The War Department is going to see what can be done about getting a new pair of glasses for Andre Valiquet of Aldenville, Mass.

Valiquet wrote President Roosevelt, complaining that he broke his glasses while enrolled in a Civilian Conservation Corps camp in Vermont. A new pair are necessary, he said, before he can work again.

His plea was referred to Robert Fechner, director of emergency conservation work, and Fechner wrote him:

"You are advised that this question has been taken up with the War Department and orders will be issued at an early date granting replacement of glasses [illegible] in the [illegible] of the emergency conservation work."

France Pays Y.D. Officer Honors

Chicago, Sept. 26 (AP)—A dinner at which the host, instead of the feted guest, carried off the honors, took place when Chauncey McCormick entertained the French ambassador, Andre de Laboulaye, at the fashionable Casino Club last night.

The ambassador anounced it was his privilege to confer the decoration of the Legion of Honor upon Mr. McCormick, who was the most surprised person of all present.

Several things contributed to the decoration, the ambassador explained. One was the leading part McCormick played in assembling works of art for the Chicago Art Institute's century of progress exhibit including Whistler's "Mother" borrowed from the Louvre in Paris.

Before that was McCormick's record in the World War for which France decorated him with the Croix de Guerre in 1920 for "bravery and coolness in visiting the American trenches in the most dangerous sectors" while a liaison officer of the French 11thCorps, which includ ed the 26th American Division.

Before Atty. Carpenter, according to the Mayberry testimony read into the present hearing, the accused attorney said he had no way of reaching Donnelly when he wanted him, but that he depended upon Donnelly to come to his office in seeking work.

He cited three cases in which men came to his office, one of them in a drunken condition, and asked for money they said Donnelly owed them.

It was after the third such visit, he testified, that he decided to question Donnelley, but that the latter never appeared again.

DENIES JURY FIXING

Under a series of rapid fire questions, Mayberry denied that he knew of any jury fixing in connection with any of his cases and volunteered the statement that, although he won verdicts in some, the cases really were "moral victories" for the other side.

Three witnesses were still missing at the hearing today, one of them, Michael Leonard of Cambridge, being confined to Cambridge City Hospital, and Donnelley and a man named Nolan still unaccounted for.

Everett to Propose School Law Change

Because state law requires 180 days of school in cities where state funds are received for aid in education, schools in Everett may not close for one day this year, it was revealed today.

The find was made by School Committeeman Joseph D. McConagle, who seeks to change the present school term in order to permit absence on stormy days.

ELY PROTESTS TRUCK STRIKE

A threat to the movement of food and other necessaries of life into Massachusetts developed today from the Connecticut truck drivers' strike. Strikers are halting all trucks, bound from New York to Massachusetts and vice versa, at the Connecticut line, and interfering with the movement of freight, it was reported to State officials here.

The situation was so threatening that Gov. Ely's office communicated with Washington. It is vital, it was said, that Massachusetts shipping be allowed to pass through Connecticut.

Connecticut police were dashing about the highways to suppress disturbances. More than 3000 drivers are on strike and have virtually paralyzed traffic in the state the last 24 hours. A score of arrests have been reported.

Motor transport between New York and Springfield and other western Massachusetts points also is tied up.

The American Railway Express Co. reports its business had been trebles by the strike. Orders were issued today for all of its employes to carry arms.

Members of the Employers Association, meeting in New Haven, have submitted a 40-hour, $36 to $40 week plan in an effort to end the strike.

Dr. Edward G. Dolan, chairman of the Connecticut NRA Board, said he would call for the militia, if necessary.

Cohan the Whole Show in O'Neill's New 'Comedy'

Pittsburgh, Sept. 26 (AP)—Eugene O'Neill's selection of George M. Cohan to star in his latest presentation to Broadway can be put down as a strategic move—even if unwittingly so—for "Ah, Wilderness" needs the presence of Mr. Cohan.

Even standing in a streak of moonlight across a darkened parlor, his arm around a middle-aged and obtuse spouse, the while he recites from Omar, George M. Cohan is able to improve greatly on the situation.

Pittsburgh, accustomed to passing judgment on theatrical entertainment headed for New York, left the Nixon Theater after the premiere last night exclaiming chiefly on the charm of Mr. Cohan.

"Ah, Wilderness" has the post-war struggle-in-the-soul theme of the 'teen-aged youth just discovering Oscar Wilde, Henrik Ibsen, George Bernard Shaw, with all the despair thrust into the heart of poetic adolescene by realism.

But virtue triumps: a commercially hedonistic "belle" gets the youth inebriated with two "sloe gin fizzes," and he recites from the fatalists to her and a newly arrived ink swain, 'till the barkeep throws him out the back room of the drinking place.

An unconvincing "Muriel McComber," wins back his flighty love and "Pa" (George M. Cohan) falls down badly in his attempt to "give the young fellow a good talking to," finally admitting that "you boys probably have talked this thing over, anyhow, till you probably know more about it than I do."

Costumes of 1906, good acting by the mother and a spinster aunt (Edna Heinemann), and an amusing drunken scene at the dinner table by Gene Lockhart—they all help.

A critic for the Post-Gazette said:

"Believe it or not, O'Neill has written a comedy . . . He may not call it a comedy but it is high in humor. It also has long, long, arid stretches when nothing eventuates."

The Sun-Telegraph said:

" . . . It is about as unlike an O'Neill play as it could be . . . It is a comedy of characters, and of these character George M. Cohan is the richest, deepest and most human."

Bridal Question Stuns Officer

Patrolman Thomas J. Coffey, who answers all kinds of questions at police headquarters, today had a new one to tell.

"I want to get married in an hour," came an anxious feminine voice on the telephone.

Coffey was speechless for a while but then explained the five-day law, the marriage license requirements and all others that he, having gone through it, should know.

"Oh! Dear," the lady sighed—and hung up.

MOSCOW IS WILD OVER LINDYS

Moscow, Sept. 26 (AP)—Col and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh began a three-day round of sightseeing today, in which an inspection of Russian aviation was an important part.

A unique demonstration in their honor in the Moscow opera last night indicated the extent to which the Red capital has taken the famous American flying couple to its heart.

An unidentified man rose in a box during an intermission and shouted in Russian "hurrah for Lindbergh!" Thereupon the entire audience in the large theater stood and applauded for several minutes.

The Lindbergs bowed smilingly as an interpreter whispered to them the significance of the din.

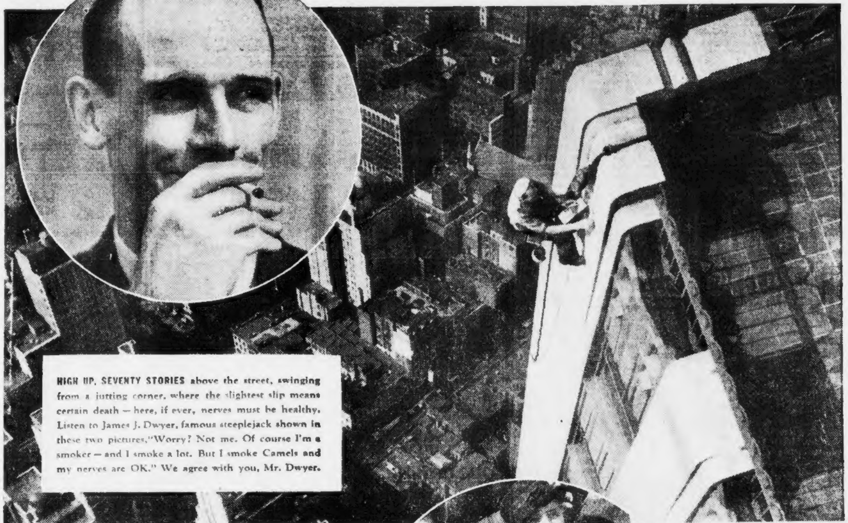
IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES — TO BE A STEEPLEJACK



HIGH UP, SEVENTY STORIES above the street, swinging from a jutting corner, where the slightest slip means certain death—here, if ever, nerves must be healthy. Listen to James J. Dwyer, famous steeplejack shown in these two pictures, "Worry? Not me. Of course I'm a smoker—and I smoke a lot. But I smoke Camels and my nerves are OK." We agree with you, Mr. Dwyer.

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

Not many of us have the iron nerves necessary to be a New York steeplejack. But we can all take a tip from these dare-devils whose very lives depend on healthy nerves.

As James J. Dwyer tells it: "I've been climbing for years and smoking cigarettes even longer. I picked Camels because they're milder. And when I say milder I mean that no matter how many I smoke they never get on my nerves. What do I think about up there in the air? Not much of anything. Worry? Not me. I smoke Camels—and my nerves are OK."

You'll like Camels, too. Their costlier tobaccos certainly make a difference. In taste. In mildness. And they never get on your nerves.

HOW ARE YOUR NERVES? Does it upset you to see someone else in a dangerous position? Just put yourself in that same place—and then consider your nerves. But remember, no matter how many you smoke, Camel's costlier tobaccos never upset your nerves. Milder? Of course. Taste better? Certainly.

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW
Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

NRA VIOLATORS ATTACKED BY ROOSEVELT

Washington, Sept. 26 (US)—President Roosevelt has directed Atty.-Gen. Cummings to prosecute NRA code violations where they are serious enough to endanger the administration's recovery program, it is learned.

This decision was reached at the Cabinet meeting last Friday, when the President was asked to lay down a policy after Secretary of the Interior Ickes had ordered prosecutions for violations of the oil code and "hot oil" regulations.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, National Recovery Administrator, and Donald R. Richberg, general counsel for the NRA, had questioned the wisdom of testing the constitutionality of the national recovery act at this time.

NATION-WIDE ORDER.

The President's intervention cleared a situation which had involved Ickes, Atty.-Gen. Cummings and the NRA.

The controversy was threshed out in the cabinet meeting, and the President, with Cummings in full accord, it was said, directed the latter not only to proceed with the oil code and "hot oil" prosecutions, but to instruct federal district attorneys throughout the country to prosecute, when evidence warranted, violations of the NRA codes generally.

Ickes ordered Louis Glavis, chief investigator for the Interior Department, to bring criminal action against gasoline retailers last week, for cutting prices below the cost of production plus a fair margin of profit.

FIRST TEST IN NEW YORK

Johnson and Richberg sought to halt proceedings because of the possibility that the courts would declare the National Recovery Act unconstitutional.

Some of Atty.-Gen. Cummings' legal aides are said to have shared Johnson's apprehension, and hints went out to federal district attorneys to withhold action against code violators until specific instructions were received from the department of justice.

First tests of the constitutionality of the NRA will come up in New York city, for violations of the oil code resulting from the gasoline price war. Meanwhile, evidence of numerous violations of the "hot oil" regulations is being whipped into shape for criminal action in Texas.

NIGHT SCHOOL AFTER MONDAY

Enrollment in Boston's public evening schools, high, elementary and trade, which was started last night, will be continued tonight and tomorrow.

Classes will begin next Monday and will continue on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays throughout the school year. According to Director Joseph F. Gould, of the Boston evening and summer schools, the classes will include courses in the commercial, academic and trade branches.

In accordance with the usual custom of the department, a deposit of $1, to be paid back at the end of the school year, is asked of each person enrolling. Principals, however, have the right to use discretion in waiving this in cases where financial resources are low.

Boston residents will receive instruction books and stationery free of charge. Non-residents of the city may attend any of the various schools on payment of a tuition fee.

The fee is $24 a year for evening high school instruction and $29 yearly for evening elementary school instruction.

N. Y. Mayor Bans Action Snaps

New York, Sept. 26—Mayor John P. O'Brien has let the newspaper photographers know that he objects to having his picture taken with his mouth open, with his glasses on, or from too close a camera angle.

On Sunday, he related, when he was making a most important, serious address at the dedication of a war memorial at Pelham Bay Park, he had turned his face toward the photographers so they could easily take his picture; but not a camera had snapped. Then, as soon as he started speaking, the cameras had begun clicking; he thought "Your Mayor" deserved more consideration than that, and he wished they wouldn't make pictures while he was speaking.

Capacity Belief Wins Release

St. Paul, Sept. 26—John M. Theisen's faith in his capacity for drink won him an investigation when he appeared in Federal Court to answer a liquor nuisance charge.

He asserted he hadn't intended to sell the 25 gallons of moonshine agents found in his home. Asked what his intentions were, he replied:

"Well, I was going to drink all I could, and bury the rest."

Worcester Man Held for R. I. Bad Checks

Providence, R. I., Sept. 26—Pleading guilty to three charges of violating the banking laws, John A. O'Toole, 25, of Worcester, Mass., is being held for the grand jury in $2000 bail on each charge.

O'Toole, police said, passed 42 checks on physicians here between July and September.

Lardner Fought 10 Years Against Tuberculosis

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—Ring Lardner, who once noted that there wasn't much difference between his native Niles, Mich., and his adopted New York, because both began with an "N," has lost his long fight against tuberculosis.

The lean, six-foot humorist who made you and me know Al, and who became a ranking figure of American literature, died suddenly at his Easthampton, Long Island, home in the 48th year of an active, interesting life. He was a former member of the Boston Evening American sports staff.

For ten years Ringgold Wilmer Lardner had fought the disease. During those years, with the spectre drawing steadily closer, his humor flowed on, bringing laughs to the faces of those who saw on the stage "Elmer the Great" and then "June Moon," and to other tens of thousands who read his "Story of a Wonder Man," "Love Nest," and other stories.

Only in the last few years has the Lardner typewriter gone on short hours.

His days of quantity production, however, were over. The sweep of the humor that filled "You Know Me, Al," "Gullible's Travels," "Own Your Own Home" and the hilarious "How to Write Short Stories" was gone.

Occasionally it flashed on those last published writings, but the spontaneity and wit of "Treat 'Em Rough," "The Young Immigrants" and "Symptoms of Being 35" were not there.

NRA FEARS AIR PILOT STRIKE

Washington, Sept. 26 (US)—The NRA National Labor Board has called a special session for today, at which it will attempt to avert a general strike of Commercial Air Line pilots, over the question of pay scales.

The controversy grew out of the pay schedules announced by the big three transport lines, the United Airways, American Airways and North American Aviation.

These schedules, which reached the headquarters of the Air Pilots Association yesterday, were declared by spokesmen for the pilots as unfair and entirely unacceptable because the pay scale is based on hours instead of on the mileage rate demanded by the pilots.

In a statement issued by David L. Behncke, president of the Air Line Pilots Association, it was borne out that under the proposal of the operators the aviators would suffer a reduction in their income rather than the increase which is sought under the NRA.

Beer "Slush" Fund Tale Discredited

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 26—D. Frederick Burnett, counsel to the legislative committee investigating the charge that Jesse R. Salmon, Essex County Republican leader, accepted a $25,000 slush fund from a brewery to defeat permanent beer legislation, told the committee the testimony of witnesses did not substantiate the charge.

Burnett made his statement after Salmon, last witness before the committee, described the charge as "maliciously and venomously false."

N.E. DEMOCRATS FACE DILEMMA OVER SOVIET

Washington, Sept. 25 (AP)—New England Democrats in Congress, who writhed frequently when confronted by administration measures at the special session last spring, soon will be in another uncomfortable position if, as expected, President Roosevelt decides to recognize Soviet Russia.

These members of Congress will be spared the necessity of voting on the recognition, as such action is administrative and requires no ratification, yet for some at least, it will be difficult to refrain from comment in opposition. It also becomes increasingly embarrassing for them to criticize the administration.

It so happens that in many sections of New England, particularly in Boston, there is strong anti-recognition sentiment.

It so happens, also, that within New England there is quiet but powerful pressure from business interests for recognition in the hope that some of Russia's trade may be won by New England firms.

Republicans are in a less disturbing position. If they decide to denounce recognition, at least they needn't worry for fear of offending the administration.

Curley Gains High Favor of Mayors' Conference

Whatever may be the standing of Mayor James M. Curley of Boston in administration circles and his own political arena at home, he is a highly respected executive among the members of the national conference of mayors, which he heads.

At meetings of the conference here and at Chicago, Curley not only was the guiding spirit but carried to the Chicago meeting a personal request from President Roosevelt to speed their recommendations for public works projects under the national public works program.

He has been praised highly by such nationally known executives as Mayor Walmsley of New Orleans, Mayor Hoan of Milwaukee and even Mayor Miller of Cleveland, with whom Curley clashed rather sharply at a mayors' conference here.

Murphy's Appointment Eases Way for Healey

Appointment of Mayor John J. Murphy of Somerville, Mass., to be United States marshal in Massachusetts is believed here to ease the way to renomination for Arthur D. Healy of that city. Healey, so politicians here reported, was aided by Murphy in the Democratic primary of 1932 and might have had to dabble in a local contest if Murphy had sought re-election as mayor.

Healey, who incidentally made a favorable impression on the Democratic leadership in the House during his first session, now is free to maintain a neutral attitude in city contests.

Internationally-minded members of Congress are looking forward to new attacks from Representative George Holden Tinkham, Boston Republican, who has spent the summer globe-trotting and at last reports was making a tour of Manchukuo, the republic set up recently in Manchuria under Japanese supervision.

Tinkham, an avowed isolationist, engaged in one noteworthy battle at the special session when the House Democratic leadership attempted, unsuccessfully, to prevent him from making a vitriolic attack upon Norman Davis, ambassador-at-large of the United States to economic and disarmament conferences in Europe.

Two Bay State Strikes Annoy Labor Board

Two of the most annoying labor disturbances before the National Labor Board are in Massachusetts. The strike of shoe workers at Brockton and the dispute between management and employes of the Westinghouse & Electric Manufacturing Co. at Springfield have occupied the board's attention for weeks. These, with the silk strike which also has spread into New England, have been described by Senator Wagner, chairman of the board, as the most troublesome he has encountered.

He is giving his personal attention to the Brockton strike and, after presenting the case before the full board today or tomorrow, expects to announce a decision.

2 Die, 2 Shot in Brooklyn Outbreaks

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 26 (AP)—An election grudge and a beer war were blamed today for Brooklyn's latest outbreak of violence in which two men were killed and two wounded.

Gunmen assailed a group emerging from the Homestead Tavern. Joseph Gill died of a bullet through the heart. A bullet wounded another man and a third was stabbed. Edward Oschinsky, bartender, was shot and killed as he stood behind his bar in another section. The killer escaped.

Britain to Pay U. S. Debt in Tokens

London, Sept. 25 (INS)—Britain will offer a token payment on her foreign debt instalment to the United States in December if a final settlement has not been reached by that time, the London Daily Telegraph said today.

The newspaper said Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, treasury expert, will said for Washington with definite instructions to bring his discussions to a satisfactory conclusion.

Man on Nazi List Kills Self

Listed as "unhanged" in Nazi propaganda being circulated here, Prof. Ehrenfest, fugitive German-Jew physicist, committed suicide in an Amsterdam laboratory yesterday, according to a dispatch from Holland today.

The scientist, who went into exile as a gesture of solidarity with his old friend, Prof. Albert Einstein, is reported to have brooded over the collapse of his career and the affront to Einstein.

His death is the second of those listed for hanging in the booklet of Dr. Johann von Leers, Nazi propagandist and author of the Hitler "death list" being distributed in Boston and New York.

COLLEAGUE MURDERED

His colleague, Prof. Theodor Lessing, Hanoverian Jewish philosopher, was slain by the Nazis a month ago in Czecho-Slovakia, where he sought sanctuary from the Hitlerites.

As previously disclosed, the names of Charlie Chaplin, Einstein, Warburg, the Guggenheims, Otto Kahn and other distinguished Jews of American prominence are on the Nazi "unhanged" roster.

Other names on the list, it was revealed today, are those of Julius Barmat; Heilmann, "opposition leader in the Prussian Landtag who agitated against Adolph Hitler"; Secretary of State Weismann; Heinrich Sklarz; Katzenellenbogen and a school superintendent, Lowenstein.

ACTORS ON LIST

Names of leading Jewish actors, film stars and critics appear in Dr. Leers' listing of Nazi enemies but without recommendation that they be hanged. Among those tabulated, and Nazi comments on them, are these:

"SIEGFRIED ARNO: Actor. Played Jewish roles in which the Jew was represented as harmless, comical and likable, with the purpose of stupefying into sleepy languor the proud race-consciousness of the German folk."

"ELIZABETH BERGER: Jew film star, highly praised by the Jew film industry, but whose studio colleagues have a unanimous opinion concerning her harsh lack of humanity and thirst for domination!"

"JAMES KLEIN: His girl-revues presented to audiences the most unbelievable lack of morals the world has ever seen. The unhappy girls who worked for him were free prey for Jew high livers. In the end the James Klein stage went up in smoke."

"ALFRED KERR (born Jew Kempner): Critic on the Berlin Tageblatt. Foully mocked the German people and lied against Adolf Hitler. Fled to Paris."

War Hero's Medals to Be Sunk in Sea

Pasadena, Cal., Sept. 26 (INS)—"I will that my war decorations from the German government be thrown into the sea."

Dr. Hans Charles Gessner, 37, German war hero, who died Aug. 27 in San Francisco, made that strange request in a will, his friend, Atty. Brooks Gifford of Pasadena, revealed today.

Gifford will carry out Dr. Gessner's request tomorrow. The glittering collection of German war medals will be thrown into the sea from a yacht. Dr. Gessner did not want the medals to fall into unworthy hands, Gifford explained.

Byrne, Who Sang U. S. Into War, Dead

Paris, Sept. 26 (INS)—John Francis Byrne, elderly American who sang "The Star-Spangled Banner" before thousands at the Trocadero Auditorium in Paris in celebration of America's entry into the World War, died today.

He was a music teacher in Paris for many years, numbering among his pupils Mary McCormic and Ganna Walska.

RED ADMITS HE SET NAZI FIRES

Leipzig, Sept. 26 (INS)—Marinus van der Lubbe, Dutch radical on trial with four alleged Communists on charges of firing the Reichstag building today admitted to the German supreme court responsibility for three separate arson attempts preceding the Berlin blaze.

This startling admission from Van der Lubbe followed directly upon sensational testimony of Ernst Torgler, former Communist Reichstag floor leader, who declared neither he nor the Communist party was responsible for the fire.

Van der Lubbe admitted he had attempted to burn down the Berlin welfare bureau, the city hall and the former Berlin imperial castle.

Judge Wilhelm Buenger asked: "Why did you do this?"

"I don't know," Van der Lubbe mumbled.

"Whose idea was it? asked the court.

"My own," said Vas der Lubbe.

"Did you want to arouse the workers?" asked the presiding judge.

"Yes," the youth replied.

Volcano Erupts

Tokio, Sept. 26. Several houses were destroyed and farmlands at villages damaged today in the eruption of the volcano Komagatake, [illegible] miles north of Hakodate.

Flier Smashes Speed Mark

St. Louis, Sept. 26—Capt. James Haizlip, whose West-East transcontinental speed record was broken, telegraphed congratulations to Col. Roscoe Turner, the new record holder, in New York.

"I am glad Col. Turner broke the record," said Capt. Haizlip. "It is a feat like this that increases public interest in aviation. Of course I would like to hold a few records, but I have a greater interest in seeing aviation advance to its proper place."

Dutch Premier Moves to Stabilize Money

London, Sept. 26 (AP)—Hendryk Colijn, chairman of the economic commission of the world economic conference, conferred today with British financial authorities and was understood to have sounded out the feeling in London on the question of currency stabilization.

Persons close to the Dutch Premier said he believes the world parley can profitably be resumed as soon as currency stabilization can be effected and obstacles preventing a return to gold as a universal currency standard removed.

TAMPICO LAID IN RUIN WITH HEAVY TOLL

Establishment of martial law brought some degree of order to the stricken city in the sunlit calm that followed the terrible storm. What little can be done is being done by the Mexican Red Cross and other relief agencies for those whose homes and possessions were swept away.

I witnessed the recent hurricane in San Domingo and Puerto Rico, but the damage done here was far greater. Barges weighing tons and smaller boats, were carried far inland and scattered along the railroad right of way.

5000 Dead With Scores Buried Alive in Mud

Mexico, D. F., Sept. 26 (AP)—Mexico's resources were mobilized today to aid the storm-stricken and flooded city of Tampico, where estimates placed the number of dead or injured as high as 5000 and thousands were left homeless. Enormous property damage was reported.

Two relief trains, carrying battalions of infantrymen to aid in reconstruction work, and food and medical supplies were en route to the oil port.

But parts of the city were under 14 feet of water and railroad tracks in the area were flooded or washed away, so it was problematical when they could arrive. A squadron of military airplanes was ordered to leave at dawn. Meanwhile, Tampico was virtually isolated from the outside world, along with its scenes of death and destruction.

Although more than two days have passed since the hurricane struck, the city was without communication facilities except by wireless from ships in the harbor. Officials reported the damage there and in other parts of the nation was "catastrophic."

It was officially revealed that two passenger trains and two freight trains disappeared between Cardenas and Tampico.

HUNDREDS BURIED ALIVE

Gen. Eduardo Vascenselos, Secretary of the Interior, who planned to fly to Tampico to direct relief work, said the number of dead "cannot be stated exactly," but the military chief of the district reported by wireless that three-fourths of Tampico was destroyed with many victims.

Unofficial reports set the death toll at from 200 to 5000. Dispatches by round-about means said the wind, of 125-mile-an-hour velocity, leveled the Civil Hospital, railroad station and customs house and that nearly every structure was destroyed or unroofed.

It was feared that hundreds had been buried alive in the ruins. Flood waters of the Panuco and Tamesi Rivers added their terrors to those of the hurricane.

Tampico was placed under martial law. Its harbor was closed to shipping. Its airplanes could not get through to its flooded airport. It was believed days might elapse before relief could reach the city. Today the possibility of disease, it was thought here, might hold new dangers.

SEA OF MUD RISES

In the entire Tampico district, as far west as 175 miles, the storm spread death and destruction. The city of Cardenas, in San Luis Potosi, reported that at least 30 drowned as the result of the collapse of a railroad dam.

It was feared that many more had been trapped by a sea of water and mud which swept the city, destroying many houses.

Two trains were reported to have been completely covered by water between Tampico and Cardenas. National Railways officials estimated that damage to their flooded or destroyed property would be $1,000,000 or more.

Crops suffered throughout the northeastern and central parts of the country, where torrential rains fell until last midnight.

Heavy damage was done in the oil fields, according to reports reaching here by way of San Luis Potosi. A number of refineries and wiped out.

Throughout the rest of Mexico heavy losoes were reported because of continuing rains.

Recent figures put Tampico's population at 100,000. It is in the State of Tamaulipas and, located in a rich and semi-tropical district, is considered the most important port in Mexico. It is on the left bank of the busy Panuco river, seven miles from its mouth, on the Gulf of Mexico.

Washington, Sept. 26 (INS)—All Americans in the hurricane zone about Tampico are believed safe, Vice-Consul R. S. Carey advised the State Department today.

A brief message from Carey stated the hurricane struck Tampico Sunday afternoon, all Americans were believed safe and the city was under martial law.

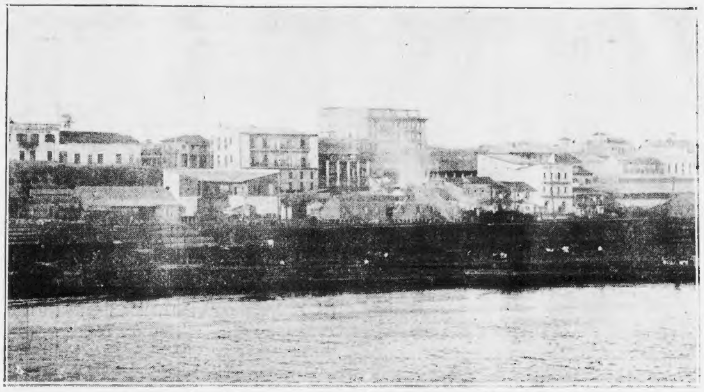
WHERE LABOR ONCE RULED MARTIAL LAW NOW HOLDS SWAY

A view of one of the busy dock scenes at stricken Tampico. On this dock hundreds found employment daily. It was undermined by the tidal seas that swept the waterfront in the wake of the hurricane. Martial law was in force in the Mexican city today as relief plans were laid. (All International News Photos.)



WHERE HAVOC RULES IN LEADING MEXICAN SEAPORT AFTER HURRICANE

DEATH DRIVER FINED $1000

Keene, N. H., Sept. 26 (AP)—Theodore Eldracher, 57, a Boston building inspector, paid a $1000 fine and costs of $100 in superior court today on his plea of nolo to a charge of manslaughter for having fatally injured Mrs. Ida Wilber, 68, of Swanzey, while driving in this city, Sept. 11.

In addition Judge John Scammon sentenced him to serve from two to three years in state prison, but suspended the term.

Mrs. Wilber died two hours after being admitted to a local hospital. A second woman, run down by Eldracher's car, Mrs. Emily Joslin, 24, of Westport, is still in a serious condition at the hospital. One of her legs was broken in six places.

Pola Scores Prince; Says Mary Right

Paris, Sept. 26 (INS)—Sympathy for Mary McCormic, opera star, in her divorce tilt with Prince Serge Mdivani was expressed here today by the latter's first wife, Pola Negri of the screen.

"I can sympathize with Miss McCormic over Serge's divorce tactics," Miss Negri said. "What is the use of mincing words? Mary is right in what she says about him.

"The Mdivani chapter was the most bitter of my life. I am finished completely with that type of love."

In his suit for divorce, Mdivani named Insull, the millionaire utilities fugitive, as his rival.

Mary McCormic, in reply, said Mdivani was the "king of the gigolos" and wholly unfit to love.

GERMANY ASKS ARMS PARLEY

Geneva, Dec. 26 (INS)—Fighting for German arms equality, Foreign Minister Baron von Neurath of the Reich today demanded delay of at least six months before the world powers adopt the proposed disarmament convention.

The demand was made by the Reich representative in the course of a conversation with Norman H. Davis, American expert, Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon of Britain and Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy.

By Dorothy Whipple Fry

THE RETURN OF ELEGANCE to the mode with the slogan "There are still those who prefer the best," has brought back a variety of distinction of gloves. These accessories are now an important fashion note in the ensemble. No longer are they a mere necessity, and no longer do we wear one type of glove for practically all day-time occasions, and omit gloves altogether after dark.

Today the smart woman knows her gloves. She knows that the mode has returned that suggests gloves with evening gown. The smart shades are egg-shell, bisque and the new beige with a faint touch of color. With a white costume a glove with a cream tint would be smarter than dead white. The faintly pinkish color called flesh to match stockings and powder and also one's skin, are chosen by many smart women. Black gloves are another new note and their use is particularly interesting, for they are worn with semi-formal black costumes.

MRS. H. PARKER WHITTINGTON

Another new and interesting mode are the fur-trimmed gloves that the lady of fashion is adopting. The trimming must match the fur and in some cases the gauntlet gloves serve as cuffs to match the fur of the collar.

For the country just now, most popular of all are yellow or white chamois gloves, the perennial choice with one button or the popular pull-on styles.

Certain sports have their own special gloves. For hunting there are yellow string gloves which keep the reins from slipping, and for motoring, the pigskin glove, both durable and trim.

There is a certain elderly lady in Boston, very elderly and very distinguished, who whenever she goes out to an especial event buys herself a new pair of white kid gloves.

Miss Priscilla Dennet, blonde daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl P. Dennet of Boston and the North Shore, is one to whom every feminine detail of her wardrobe is important. Needless to say, her gloves are chosen with the utmost care and are entirely suited to her smart attire.

Mrs. H. Parker Whittington has returned from her busy summer in Duxbury. It was she who gave the delightful tea to introduce the South Shore player earlier in the season at her home at Duxbury. Her efforts during the summer were tireless in promoting that good cause, and we now find her engaged in sponsoring the lecture course by Miss Eunice Harriet Avery on "World Affairs."

Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw of Sears rd., Brookline, who has just returned from the North Shore to her stately winter home, gave a large supper dance, a most sweet and colorful "welcome home" occasion. Mrs. Shaw, who is tall, slender and statuesque, is a charming hostess with the utmost poise.

Miss Molly Wheeler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Wheeler, had a charming tea given at her home last Saturday. Among the first of the debutante functions and consequently of great social interest. Miss Wheeler wore a fascinating frock of Morse rose with touches of claret velvet, and a charming miniature muff of musk roses and daisies. No debutante could look more charming than did Miss Wheeler.

Blue Velvet

MISS ALICE CLARK, also one of this year's debutantes, was clad in dark blue velvet, very becoming and beautifully tailored. More and more we notice how definitely able the debutante is to frock herself in good taste and a more limited wardrobe than the young lady who made her bow to society some years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bartlett of Plymouth entertained Mr. and Mrs. James Cunningham Grey over the week-end. Mrs. Grey, looking as usual, charming in a light yellow sport frock matching her red gold hair, and creating a striking figure in "Autumn gold."

Mrs. Bartlett, who is an expert horsewoman, appeared mounted on a stunning sorrel horse in white duck riding trousers, sport shirt and bright red bandeau.

Among the guests entertained by Mrs. Bartlett, in honor of Mrs. Grey, were Mr. and Mrs. Kinsbury Browne, who are spending a few late week-ends in the country, and planning to move to their new home on Coswold rd. early this week.

* * *

Brown Tweed

MR. AND MRS. JAMES STEARNS of Clark rd., Brookline, have opened their winter home after summering at Long Pond, Plymouth. Mrs. Stearns is looking particularly attractive this fall in a reddish brown tweed ensemble, that exactly matches her Titian waving hair. She is tall and slender, with brown eyes. Her two small daughters, the Misses Elizabeth and Janet Stearns, achieved high honors in swimming and diving this summer.

Mrs. Robert C. Terry, having summered on the North Shore, has returned to her home in Cambridge. Terry is blonde and animated. One of her most outstanding features is her charming speaking voice.

Mrs. Lawrence Coolidge of Boston and Pride's Crossing is among the smart fashionables who have lately returned home. Her new fall regalia consists of a svelt tweed outfit with swagger coat and a striped sport sweater partly colored that is the envy of her friends.

Mrs. Coolidge has a gorgeous string of pearls beautifully matched and dainty enough to be quite appropriate with sport wear.

Miss Susan Means, beautiful Titian daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Means of Brookline and Topsfield, is making her debut this year at a tea to be given by Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lowell Blake and Miss Means is one of the smartly dressed young ladies to whom the circle of debutantes look with admiring gaze. Her charming brown and white print for early fall wear with smart brown suede pumps is one of her nicest costumes.

Among those also to be feted at Mrs. Blake's tea are Miss Caroline Hunnewell, Miss Amy Lang and Miss Gwendolen Livermore, whose sister, Mrs. Willis Beale, was recently married on the North Shore. Miss Livermore is petite with golden brown hair and a very trig and stylish manner of dressing.

Debutantes as Mannequins at Style Show

Several of this year's fairest debutantes and some of last season's debs who proved to be the most popular models are serving as mannequins at the fall opening this afternoon of Chez Madelaine, 153 Newbury st.

The occasion is being made a very elaborate one with the Club Mayfair Orchestra, tea and the presence of husbands and escorts.

Miss Gertrude McGinley and Miss Evelyn Weatherby are two of this season's debs who will be seen in the parade of the sumptuous collection of gowns and coats. Miss Virginia Tolman, whose blonde and blue-eyed charm will be an asset to the show, and Miss Lydia Fuller, whose services as a model always in demand, are in the group as well as Miss Alice Merriam, Miss Marjorie Danforth, Miss Annette Hollis, Mrs. Stedman Buttrick, Mrs. Ralph Kellogg and Miss Virginia Smith.

From Framingham Center comes announcement of the engagement of Miss Margaret Cowles Esty to Mr. Robert Walker Seamans of Framingham Center and St. Louis, Mo. Miss Esty is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alexander Esty, who made known the engagement. She attended Abbott Academy.

Mr. Seamans is the son of Mrs. Frank Seamans and the late Mr. Seamans.

Harvard Boys Lose Auto and Clothing

Cambridge police were engaged in a search today for the auto of two brothers, stolen from in front of Memorial Hall, Harvard, while the pair were registering for classes. The youths, Charles K. Howard, and his brother, Lee, both of New York, told police there were several suitcases, containing clothing and articles valued at $730, in the stolen car.

Robert Lincoln O'Brien, chairman of the United States tariff commission, will speak to the Northeastern University student body tomorrow noon in Jordan Hall. The subject of his address is "The Revolt of the Mule."

Phyllis Riley of Belmont to Wed Albert Dunning King

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE PHILIP RILEY of Belmont announce the engagement of their daughter, Phyllis, to Mr. Albert Dunning King, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl King, of Palmer.

Mr. King is the grandson of the late Rev. Albert E. Dunning. He is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology with the class of '32, and received his master's degree this year. He is a former resident of Jamaica Plain. The wedding will follow the graduation of Miss Riley from Simmons College in June of next year.

* * *

ANOTHER JUNE BRIDE will be Miss Eileen Catherine Murphy of Newton, whose engagement has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy, to Mr. John Joseph Murphy of New York.

Miss Murphy is a graduate of Regis College and is a leader in the activities of the Junior Philomathetans, affiliated with Boston College. Mr. Murphy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy of Auburndale, and was graduated from Boston College and the Fordham School of Sociology. He is associated with the Department of Social Service in New York State.

BOOKS---A Number of Things

By Charles Hanson Towne

We Americans are given to forming ourselves into organizations. There are innumerable temperance societies, Kiwanis and Rotary, and, of course, many religious bodies with grandiloquent names and vague purposes. All these have not only their large membership but their long list of officers and executives, who meet from time to time and discuss we know not what.

In the arts the poets seem the most willing to get together. Musicians do so, too, but usually with the single idea of adjusting wage scales. They do not bring their fiddles and bassoons and flutes along with them when they meet and burden one another with loud tunes. They gather only to speak of the union to which they also belong and to save certain of the fraternity from financial disaster.

But the poets join hands in order to read aloud their little masterpieces. They would seem to go in for mutual admiration, if not for mutual understanding, and there is scarcely a city in this land of ours now that does not contain its branch of the larger Poetry Society, which was formed many years ago in New York.

* * *

These smaller organizations generally become, in time, ambitious to issue magazines of verse, imitating Miss Harriet Monroe's noble venture in Chicago. Most of them fail and sometimes one imagines they deserve failure. Some flower born to blush unseen on a Western prairie makes up her mind to express herself lyrically. She generally has three euphonious names, which she signs grandly at the bottom of her tender song. It may be something like Lydia Marblehead Nolan, and she thinks that this beautiful cognomen will soon ring round the world. But there it lies, at the end of her song, on a crudely printed page, and civilization marches by, unconcerned with the forlorn and mystical singer, pouring her very heart out on paper.

She has plenty of company. Some young man, who signs himself Augustus Milton Bradshaw dwelling in a tiny village in the north woods, also feels impelled to break into print with tender effusions and little success. He gasps about the love he has never known. Nature appeals to him, too; raindrops and marigolds make excellent copy, and he has listened to the morning lark and tried valiantly to interpret his robust song. But mostly it is human emotion that concerns him.

* * *

I have looked through these minor magazines of our minor poets many times and have been embarrassed and distressed at the amount of unrequited love there is in the world. The pages wreak with anguish and drip with tears—not very well expressed anguish and not, one fears, very sincere weeping. Not being able, in his distant hamlet, to reveal himself to the world at large, Mr. Bradshaw—and Miss Nolan, too—take a strange delight in exposing their broken hearts to us above their respective signatures; but perhaps they would be surprised to know that their papier-mache emotions are looked upon lightly.

There is not enough good poetry written in a year to fill even a small folio; but, of course, there is enough verse of dubious merit or no merit at all to be bound together in thousands of closely printed pages, and while it is bad enough to read these tragic effusions, it is harder still to listen to the poets reciting them aloud at meetings of our various poetry societies. One feels ashamed when Miss Nettie Littleton Pepperkorn arises and reveals All. Her lover has left her, her heart is a soiled thing in the dust of the world's highways, and she will never again be able to give what has been so sadly shattered and she doesn't care who knows it.

* * *

Such a form of exhibitionism is not rare. Most poets read their own poems atrociously, but Miss Pepperkorn, Miss Nolan and Mr. Bradshaw are particularly poor interpreters of the songs that have gushed from their hearts, and one wishes that they had been content to remain in that seclusion which Fate has imposed upon them. But no, they must face the universe and personally deliver their mighty Message. It is only a step from the printed page to the lecture platform or the rostrum, or even the pulpit; for many of our churches offer poets a chance to speak out in public. But to get to the stage of a theater on a rainy Sunday afternoon before a vast audience seems to be the secret desire of every minor bard of the land, though seldom is it given to him to achieve his ambition. One wishes, hearing these rhymsters, that they would suffer in private and find an outlet for their pent-up feelings in the written word, not the printed, and by no means the spoken word.

HOW TO KEEP THE WARDROBE RIGHT -:- SMOOTH SKIN AS ESSENTIAL AS CURVES

American Women Will Not Pick Up Fashion's Foibles If They Don't Appeal

By Victoria Gaines

NEW YORK, Sept. 26—Just because a frock sports a Paris label is not sign that it's sure to be a success in America. Many a new fashion that's gone over big in Paris fails to click with American women at all. Here are some safe and sure numbers from the French collections that will keep your wardrobe from going wrong:

First, Schiaparelli's big success—the coat with the "cat's whisker" bow of civet cat fur that ties saucily under the chin and trails off into long dangling ends. Next, Maggy Rouff's suit with the "hippy" looking pockets of Persian lamb, which probably will be copied in coats as well as suits. Then, there's Mainbocher's cocktail suit—of black wool with a lame blouse.

And another Mainbocher model—an evening frock with divinely sculptured lines and a circular flounce at the bottom. Not to forget those frocks of Chinese inspiration — also from Schiaparelli — with the high mandarin collars and long tunics.

Wings Over Fashion

This business of wings over fashion that started with sleeves seems to be spreading to hats, too. Have you noticed all the flaps and flanges on the new hats—for all the world like little winged victory caps? Many of these wing tips are pointed, and if they aren't pointed, they're peaked. The newest imports are pinched into a peak at the top, usually with a little feather gadget set rakishly at the top or side.

Other things to remember about the new hats are:

The little, creased hats like army fatigue caps, the off-the-face brims that give a "young, innocent" look, the completely cockeyed berets — by which we mean that they're worn completely cocked over the eye. And all hats are high in the back and crushed, draped or pulled down somehow over one eye.

Food Fashions

Fashion's menu includes some appetizingly named colors this season in spite of slender figures and reducing diets. Remember last summer when we had strawberry pink, lettuce green and lemon yellow? Well, now it's olive green, caviar gray and blackberry—shades slightly more sophisticated but just as tempting.

Olive green like its namesake, is one of those [illegible] that you have to acquire a taste for, but once you get used to it, it's as becoming as any other color and much newer. It's mostly worn in frocks and blouses, or to lighten up a dark frock. Caviar gray is that subtle shade between black and gray—a color for a true sophisticate's palate. It's very good in coats and suits but it's seen in dresses, too.

Blackberry is another in-between shade — partly purple and partly black — and it's Patou's pet color this season. It's very wearable — we've seen it in frocks, coats, accessories, etc. Any of these shades would make a pleasant change in your color diet. And, honestly, they are good enough to eat.

Screen Fashion

Jean Harlow wears an exquisite taffeta gown with rows of ruffles cascading down the back in a bustle effect. It has the new neckline, too — high in front, and low in back. Claudette Colbert steps out in the Lady Lou manner in her new picture — striped satin flounced over each shoulder and on the skirt. And then she becomes "just one of the girls" in a white collar and tie that any one of us might wear down to the office.

All of these costumes can be worn by you, and you and YOU — because reproductions of these models are made at moderate prices.

Fashion Dictionary

Bretelles — Suspender-like straps that widen as they cross the shoulders and taper as they come down to the waist.

Bustles — Anything at the back of a frock just below the waist that gives it a bunched-up look — bows, ruffles or drapes. If it's cleverly done it DOES make the waist look smaller by contrast!

Sheath Silhouette — Also called the streamline silhouette, the mermaid silhouette and so many other things we can't think of them all at once. Anyway it means a supple, shapely, clinging silhouette that reveals every curve you have, and even some you don't have. It looks simple, but it really requires the most subtle fitting and expert cutting to be successful.

Dramatic Bit of Gaiety in Collar

By ANNICE BRINK

TO HAUL YOUR wardrobe from the turgid depths of boredom it will occasionally sink to, try a Chinese mandarin collar of deep hyacinthine blue velvet trimmed with gold brocade and two gold tassels.

You may thank the Chinese influence for a collar that puts into the shade all the anemic bits of lace or satin that we've been using to snap up a frock whose virtue is utility rather than pure attractiveness. The Sons of Han can give us many a lesson in elaborate and lovely color effects with rich materials. This combination of gold brocade, showing tiny highlights of red, combined with a purple-blue is typical.

The hyacinthine shade will make blue eyes bluer, grey eyes deeper, brown eyes very softly brown, and green eyes an enigma of blue-grey-green.

There is nothing like a plain black frock to foster the washed-out look, and after all no one of us sparkles and effervesces every moment of the day. The fatigue curve is apt to take us in its toils around 11 in the morning, and 4 in the afternoon, and though we may have started out looking fresh as a dewy gardenia, around the "fatigue curve times" we're apt to turn brown at the edges, too.

With a comb run through the hair, a touch to the make up, and the mandarin collar atop your shoulders, a remark might be, "You look a trifle tired, my dear," will automatically become, "How gay and lively we are today!" And the fatigue curve will be foiled!

There are other colors obtainable in this very nice frock-furbisher of velvet and brocade. We'll tell you where they may be seen. Just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Cocktails For Starting Dinner

By MARTHA LEE

THERE'S SOMETHING mighty attractive for the start of a "company" dinner in the thought of a colorful cocktail, either tomato or clam juice, or crisp cool fish, with the piquant accompanying cocktail sauce.

And the service is so pretty! Any hostess anxious to have the most enticing looking foods for her dinner party table can do no better than to serve in tall stemmed cocktail glasses, chilled tidbits of crab meat, lobster, shrimps or scallops, or ice cold, perfectly seasoned tomato or clam juice.

Crab Meat Cocktail

To one cup of crab flakes, add 2 hard-cooked, finely-chopped eggs and six sliced stuffed olives. Fork in lightly ½ cup shredded and crisped lettuce. Add ½ cup plain cocktail sauce and serve in 6 small green pepper cups.

Lobster Cocktail

Allow ¼ cup lobster meat, cut in pieces, for each cocktail, and season with 2 tbsps. each, tomato catsup and sherry wine, 1 tbsp. lemon juice, 6 drops tabasco sauce, ⅛ tsp. finely-chopped chives and salt to taste. Chill thoroughly and serve in cocktail glasses.

PLAIN COCKTAIL SAUCE—Mix together and put in bottle or glass jar; ½ cup catsup or chili sauce, ¼ cup lemon juice, ⅛ tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. Worcestershire sauce and 2 drops tabasco sauce. Will keep indefinitely on ice.

PIQUANT COCKTAIL SAUCE — Mix together plain cocktail sauce and ¼ cup India relish and keep on ice.

Tomato Cocktail

Mix together contents of 2½ cups strained tomato juice, 2 tsps. malt vinegar, 1½ tsps. salt, 10 drops tabasco sauce, ½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce and 2 tsps. lemon juice. Chill and serve in cocktail glasses. Enough for six.

Tomato and Celery Cocktail

Simmer together for 30 minutes the following ingredients: Contents of 3¼ cups tomato juice, 2 cups water, 1 cup celery (outer stalks and leaves), 1 bay leaf, 1 tsp. horseradish, 1 peppercorn, 1 tsp. salt and 1 slice onion. Strain and cool. Serve cold in cocktail glasses. Serves eight.

Mae West

WHEN I PURCHASED the black cut-velvet dinner gown you see here in my photograph, I was anxious to find something really smart in the way of a wrap to wear with it.

Travis Banton solved the problem for me by [illegible] and creating this [illegible] jacket of close-clipped white caracul, featuring the popular leg o' mutton sleeve. [illegible] the natural waistline, and has a very tailored collar and wide lapels. The buttons are covered with the caracul, while the coat itself is lined with a piece of rich satin brocade.

• • •

YOU'LL NOTICE [illegible] the hat [illegible] one of the latest styles, the cartwheel model, fashioned in black chiffon velvet. It has a shallow crown, emphasized as such by the use of a wide band of patent leather ribbon across it.

My only jewelry consists of a pair of long crystal earrings with a necklace of matching pattern. White kid gloves, black [illegible] pumps, and a small white [illegible] bag complete my outfit.

AND SPEAKING of jewelry — have you noticed how much more it is coming into favor this fall? Last season it seemed to be the smart thing to wear severe gowns completely unrelieved by ornaments of any kind. That idea is now a thing of the past.

The more jewelry one wears today, the more fashionable she appears. Rhinestone and cut steel shoe buckles are back in vogue once more. Jeweled clips are worn on gowns, bags, hats, and even belts; while the use of exotic costume jewelry—bracelets, necklaces and earrings is considered the smart thing to do.

PANDORA TELLS YOU

DEAR PANDORA:

I am writing you from Wheeling, W. Virginia—that's how far your famous wisdom has penetrated. I understand you have dimples, but [illegible] right with me—you have a mind and I don't care how much flesh [illegible] play you can save me [illegible] same as [illegible] recently saved a friend of mine who asked you how to deal with a husband who had a chronic headache. This party was about to jump into the creek when your consoling letter arrived—and now he takes aspirin and Scotch at bedtime. My friend says he no longer throws things.

My trouble is mother-in-law. Don't laugh and ask if I think I am in the gay nineties. It's true I [illegible] drawn a stage mother-in-law. She regulates my [illegible] clothing, temperature and cigarettes. She gives me "good advice" until I could use a Mexican machette. The machette is employed by Mexicans largely on the abdomen.

Now, shall I take a stand and denounce this tyrant to her teeth? Shall I notify my husband to oust her or shall I cut it all and leave with a coal mine superintendent who quivers every time he looks at me? The coal mine person suggests we go to Morocco and Algerian [illegible] and drink champagne while the money lasts, then we will return home and he will seek work. I incline to the last, especially as my mother-in-law is a leading dry and makes a scene whenever anyone offers her a cocktail. [illegible] has never heard of the repeal movement. I think the Morocco business would annoy her beyond anything else and I am already looking over steamer clothes. These berets are very [illegible] don't you think? Still, I will wait until I hear from you.

JANE K. L. G. (Uncertain).

DEAR JANE K. L. G.: I do not know whether [illegible] waves are high enough [illegible] much of a mental [illegible] as Wheeling, W. Va. [illegible] let me give you my opinion. Or, to be more exact, get in my two cents' worth. In your tirade against your wind [illegible] in-law, you make no mention whatever of your sentimental relations with your husband. Briefly I am to assume that if you are putting up with this unmitigated pest of an in-law the other conditions surrounding your home life must have been rather comfortable. If I were you, I would hesitate a long time before doing Morocco and Algiers with the quivering mine superintendent. Any trip undertaken on the premise of "as long as the money lasts" is invariably a short voyage and a troublous one.

My suggestion is that you [illegible] yourself a snappy little [illegible] reply to all of your mother-in-law's injunctions with [illegible] irony and mix a cocktail [illegible] for your husband, who, in the background and yet not involved in any of these battles must be quitta, if not whatta.

PANDORA.

Daily Suggestion for Self-Improvement

We just can't let the stronger sex get the best of us in shoe shines. But they have —to date. Watch the difference in the gleam on the toes of of the heels as they walk here, there, all around the town. Masculine boots show the best average of polishes per person, per day, over feminine boots. Now tut, tut. Let us get a favorite boot black and visit him regularly—or rotate our shoes leaving one pair to be slicked up and rested while we step out in the newly renovated toes and heels of the other pair or pairs. The habit of the daily shoe-shine is an excellent one to cultivate.

Despite all the aspersions tossed at water as a beverage, says the major, its a top draught when you need it. It all depends on the humor you're in whether any drink means anything. The best drink I ever had was nothing more serious than a cup of coffee. I was one of the members of the old Fighting Ninth Regiment of Massachusetts who went to Paul Kruger's assistance when he was trying to shoo the British out of South Africa. The old President of the Transvaal Republic welcomed five tired volunteers and served us a cup of coffee, the like of which I've never tasted before or since."

Edward J. Tighe, chief of the Revere police department, thinks that women should not attend prize fights.

"For some reason or other women never get the drift of a fight," says the chief, "and I should know. I've seen them guess wrong about fights as long as I can remember. I remember once I told a drunk to pipe down on a street car and a moment later, dressed in my best civilian clothes, I was rolling around the streets with a giant. He had me under him and in the struggle I saw a woman come running toward me with an umbrella. I knew how it would turn out. And I was right. The minute I rolled the bruised over so that she could get a crack at me, I got the umbrella handle on the head.

"'Let go of that boy, you brute,'" she howled at me, and executed a beautiful follow through on my head again. It turned out that she didn't know either of us, just a lady fight-fan trying to reach a decision."

More buying calls for factory activity and more employment for workers. The NRA implies an endless chain of collective effort, and I believe women everywhere understand the part they have to play in it."

KEY TO TRAVERS BRIBE PROBE "DISAPPEARS"

This Is Life

—By ROBERT E. ROGERS

The whistles are blowing at the great white educational factors on the Charles and I am all packed up to leave the little town beside the sea, after a summer which the weather sharps tell us has been normal but which certainly seems to me to have been cloudier, cooler and a whole lot wetter than most summers. Probably October will be dry and hot and lovely but I shall be having other things on my mind than the weather.

As I leave, the town of Rockport is all on fire with civic pride and enthusiasm, with the idea of "putting Rockport on the map." The civic pride seems to be about equally divided between the famous float which is going to the American Legion parade in Chicago and the fact that a local boy pitcher on the town baseball team has been scouted for the New York Yankees and has an excellent chance of making big league baseball.

Gloucester already has one famous big leaguer and little Lanesville on Ipswich Bay has a famous saxophonist and orchestra leader, Jacobson, so Cape Ann is rather of the opinion that summer artists and literary folk and other visiting firemen are not such a much. The little granite peninsula can still produce its own celebrities. And for national fame there is always A. Piatt Andrew, that eloquent and hard-working and generally useful statesman who in the estimation of Essex county would adorn a higher sphere than that of a congressman, especially in these days when Congress is rather like a fifth wheel on the coach of state.

* * *

But for the moment the talk hereabouts is all of the Rockport float and the thousand dollar prize it expects to win at the Legion convention in Chicago. A year or two ago Gloucester sent out a float carrying a fishing schooner, all complete, which attracted a good deal of attention in foreign parts. This year Rockport thinks it has Gloucester beat and its collective bosom is swelling with pride at the achievement.

Saturday afternoon a little procession wound its way through the town in the cool September sunshine. It wasn't a very long procession, because the Legion post, although of good size for a village, is not as large as it might be if everybody eligible joined. But there was the new Legion band, which has been giving evening contests all summer, very brave in blue coats and white trousers, a detachment of uniformed Boy Scouts with banners and red scarves, the rest of the Legion in blue or olive drab, and the committees that raised the money and did the work in automobiles.

Thus escorted the heart of the procession and the cynosure of all eyes, the Rockport float with clanging bell passed slowly through the streets on exhibition before it takes off on Monday to the Century of Progress, whence the Gertrude L. Thebaud sailed some weeks ago. The float is to go all the way over the road competently manned with artists and mechanics to keep it in repair, and will take part in the big Legion parade, in which it hopes to draw the big prize. If it does there will be rejoicing in Rockport and stretched hat-bands and expanded waistcoat and not without reason.

* * *

For years it has been an art joke in Rockport for Rockport is one of the great summer art centers of the country—that the first thing the visiting limner paints is a certain quaint fish house on an old wharf in the inner harbor. It is a simple enough old shack with an ell at right angles and the fishing boats tied up at its granite base but seen against the inner harbor with the yacht club fleet at their moorings and the rocky and grassy headlands in the distance, it makes a charming composition which is known all over the art world wherever paintings by Rockport artists are exhibited.

What the fishing fleet is to Gloucester, and the Twin Lights to Bass Rocks, this old fish wharf Motive Number One is to Rockport. That is the float. The whole thing in miniature, a little house strongly built, a travelling house on wheels for a few men. Against the wall of the dock are small fishing boats tied up with real sails.

* * *

This is the work in which a body of men and women have been engaged all summer, the Legionaries, the local craftsmen and mechanics, the resident artists who designed and painted it, carpenters, motor machanics—everyone offering his talent to make a complete job. Money has been raised, advertising written. The Legion, the Chamber of Commerce, the women's organizations all have done their bit. It is as nice a piece of old-fashioned community enterprise—operating voluntarily without a code—as you would wish to see.

It is an example on a small scale of the way larger things used to be done when the American people were self-dependent, before the idea got abroad that the government owed us a living, employment, and control for our own good. It is an example of the way American communities used to be built up—and used to flourish—without either help, advice, or regulation from Washington.

FAILURE TO CUT RELIEF COSTS STARTS PROBE

Reduced Only 4 P. C in Hub; Other Cities as High as 60 P. C

Just why Boston welfare costs have dropped only 4 per cent, while those in other cities decreased as much as 60 per cent will be the subject of investigation by the Finance Commission, according to an order of City Councillor Clement A. Norton.

Calling attention to two men who were bound over to the grand jury last week for an alleged attempt to defraud the city, the Hyde Park councillor declared that an investigation was needed "to drive out the grafters and racketeers."

The measure was opposed by Councillor Thomas Burke of Dorchester, the latter taking occasion to score Gov. Ely for failing to cooperate with the city government in its program to obtain Federal funds and put the unemployed in active job.

Burke was joined by Councillor John F. Dowd of Roxbury in a statement that the 31,000 families under relief in Boston were not receiving allotments that were sufficient for more than a bare existence. Burke said relief allotments should be increased 20 per cent in order to keep pace with the rising living costs.

A second order of Councillor Norton's requested Mayor Curley to ask the resignations of Chairman Simon Hecht and the other 11 unpaid members of the welfare board.

The move was opposed by Councillor Israel Ruby of Dorchester. Councillor Joseph McGrath, president, referred it to the executive committee.

FRENCH FACES CRUELTY IN WIFE'S PLEA

Romance of Former U. S. Attorney Ends in Divorce Court

Barely three years after their surprise wedding at Albany, N. Y., Asa P. French, 73, former U. S. attorney, today was sued for separate support by the former Isabelle M. Dowling, 49, in an action filed at Dedham court.

Mrs. French, widow of Mark Temple Dowling, Boston realtor, charged cruelty in support of her contention that she was living apart from justifiable cause.

ASKS RESTRAINT BAN

She asked the court also to prohibit her husband "from imposing any restraint on her personal liberty and to make such further orders as it deems expedient concerning her support and care of her child."

Mrs. French said the rift in her second marriage venture came about a month after the couple married at Albany Sept. 4, 1930.

Atty. French, who makes his home in Randolph, has had a long and colorful career in legal circles. He rose to fame as far back as 1896 when he took part as counsel in the famous Mate Bram murder on the high seas, later woven into a novel by Mary Roberts Rinehart.

GRADUATE OF YALE

Later he served as district attorney in southeastern Massachusetts and finally as U. S. attorney at Boston. He was born in Braintree in 1860 and was a member of the 1881 class at Yale.

Mrs. French was divorced from her former husband some years before his death.

READ THIS FIRST

Gail Loveless, beautiful Operator 13 of the Federal Secret Service, clashed with wits and wills more than once with Capt. Jack Gailliard, handsome and gallant Confederate spy, as they played their intricate game of deceit and subterfuge, with the fate of armies in the balance and their own lives always at stake. And they discovered they were deeply in love and planned to marry if death spared them until the war should end.

Almost on the heels of that engagement Gail Loveless was sent to capture, kill or drive across the Canadian border Capt. Jack Gailliard, who had traveled north to organize secret enemies of the Union for a great revolt timed to begin when the compulsory draft went into effect. In New York Operator 13 trapped Gailliard and stole his confidential papers. He prepared to flee to Montreal, and she, knowing he would otherwise almost certainly be captured and hanged, rode with him on the train, vouching for him to her fellow Secret Service operator.

But Gailliard refused to give her his parole and [illegible] Canada, abandoning his operations for the Confederacy, [illegible] when she handcuffed him to herself he leaped off the train with her in his arms, freed himself and escaped. She followed him back to New York, still in love with him, but determined to capture and humiliate him thoroughly, but for weeks was unable to find any trace of him.

Then in a theater she heard Clive Andrews, a young Virginian, mention Claire Quilter, known to be a Confederate spy, and so she set about to captivate Andrews, hoping to worm secrets out of him. She was dressed at the time to represent a girl of the streets.

"I don't believe it was a Yankee victory," said the girl, nose in the air, and she cast the paper into the gutter.

The boy wanted her to have oysters and champagne with him at [illegible], but she snubbed him.

"You might as well ask me to Buttercake Dick's or Pat Lyons' place," she remarked scornfully, "or to see the show at the Chatham or the Bowery. What kind of girl do you think I am?"

"A pretty one ma'am, and a good rebel, and I don't care whether you come from the Old Brewery or Cow Bay or the Golden Gate or Dickens' place—"

"Maybe you'd like to take me to see Chanfrau play 'Mose'," she said disdainfully, "or to the Franklin or Manger's. Let me illuminate your innocent mind, young sir—the Astor Place Opera is the only theater where I care to be seen."

This was so delightfully impudent that they both laughed—she of course, in character.

"Well," she said, "I've had enough of backrooms. Can't you think of something new?"

"Castle Hastings?" he asked cautiously.

"And Empress Kate and the Marchioness d'Orsay and Princess Jenny? No, thanks. But I see you're a highflier, young sir, so I'll wish you good night."

AT HER DISPOSAL

"No, I don't drink. I like to talk and eat ice cream, sometimes."

"We can go to that steam ice creamery, then."

[illegible] went thither. She took his [illegible] they chatted amiably, and [illegible] names. Hers was Mary [illegible] Fairfax.

"No, I can't," said Andrews hastily; "I don't know her at all."

"If you don't know her, how did you happen to mention her? Do you know where she is living?"

The boy gave her a scared glance. "What are you, anyway?" he asked.

"You picked me up; you ought to know," she replied.

FRIGHTENED BOY

"I don't know, and I'm beginning to wonder which of us did the picking up."

She laughed. "What do you mean?"

"Maybe you know what I mean."

"I don't."

"You're very innocent—to look at!"

"Are you trying to be disagreeable?"

"I'm trying not to be a fool," said the boy. "This city is full of innocent-looking ladies and gentlemen in the pay of the Federal government."

"Are you trying to scare me because I'm a rebel?"

"You say you are."

After a silence: "I'm wondering," she said, "whether you are a Federal detective."

"I'm wondering about you, too," he retorted, reddening.

"Very well," said she; "you heard me say I hoped for a Confederate victory. And I do. So make the most of it—if you're a Yankee detective."

"Well," she added impudently, "why don't you arrest me?"

"Look here," he said, "I believe you're a Federal spy!"

She said coolly: "Tell that to my friend Jack Gailliard and see what he'll do to you, Mr Andrews."

"I'll tell Jack Gailliard and Clair Quilter, too!" he blurted out. "And when you finish your ice cream I'll let you run home my pretty little stool pigeon!"

"Then I'll run along now," said the girl, rising. "Good-night, and thank you."

ON HIS TRAIL

Not far. There was a city hack standing on the opposite side of the street. She sped across and climbed in, and said to the driver "Wait here. When I tell you to follow somebody, follow. Your tip will be five dollars."

"Correct, lady. Is it a gal or a swell?"

"A swell. I'll point him out There he is, now!" as her late cavalier emerged, looked up and down Broadway—rather wistfully, she thought—then walked away westward through 10th st.

Fur Makes Smart Jacket

For the restless life we Americans lead, we need versatile clothes. That is why the formal type of sports clothes, like both costumes in the accompanying sketch, are so important to us. They're terribly hard to classify. If you call them sports clothes, you [illegible] a slight mistake, for these [illegible] from the hands of clever American designers, look equally [illegible] town as in the country. ## Elimination Principle Much to Do With Assuring Contract

E[illegible] and forced [illegible] have much in common [illegible] they are not identical [illegible] players think. [illegible] of an adverse hand is designed to force a favorable lead [illegible] elimination of a suit or [illegible] from the open or closed hand [illegible] purpose behind [illegible] to put an adversary [illegible] and then compel him to make a play that will give [illegible] not otherwise attainable. A good Bridge player must understand both of these tricks of [illegible] if he is to be assured of making contracts which depend on something more than cashing [illegible] and Kings and [illegible] established low cards. [illegible] more [illegible] are lost by failure to [illegible] and apply these principles [illegible] by any other of the offenses of the average Bridge player.

An interesting example of the correct application of the principle of elimination occurred in a hand played recently by Mrs. Frank E. W. Bright of Detroit in a Duplicate game at Ottawa, Canada.

North, Dealer.

North: ♠AK ♡AJ 08 ♢AQ9 ♣J7 4
West: ♠10 7 4 3 ♡Q7 4 ♢J104 ♣62
East: ♠Q862 ♡K952 ♢K872 ♣8
South: ♠J95 ♡6 ♢653 ♣AKQ1093

The bidding

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1♡ | Pass | 2♣ | Pass |
| 3♢ (1) | Pass | 4♣ | Pass |
| 4NT (2) | Pass | 5♣ (3) | Pass |
| 6♣ (4) | Pass | Pass | Pass |

(1) North has a splendid fit with South's suit. The latter's [illegible] closed hand. Dummy was re-entered by leading a spade and another heart led and ruffed. The remaining high spade in Dummy permitted the lead of North's last heart, which the Declarer ruffed. Hearts were now eliminated from the Dummy. South then completed the process of eliminating spades from both the open and closed hands by leading the spade Knave, which was ruffed in Dummy. All that was now needed to practically assure the contract was to find the adversely held trumps divided 2-1. When they were found to be so divided by two leads of trumps, Mrs. Bright led the diamond three from her own hand, and, when West played the four, played the nine from the Dum-[illegible] Takeout may of course, be based on entirely minimum value but North feels that the risk is worth running and so forces a further bid from South by the bid of a three-card suit.

(2) In this case showing three Aces.

(3) Despite North's strong bidding, South is still reluctant to attempt a Slam.

(4) North is unwilling to play the hand at less than six.

West's Opening lead was a heart. As a matter of fact there is not much choice of a suit to lead with his holding. This trick was won in Dummy with the Ace and a heart returned and immediately ruffed in the [illegible]my. East won with the King but could find no play to prevent the making of the Slam contract.

Today's Question

South: ♠— ♡— ♢KQ10875 ♣KQJ10643

Answer The correct bidding is:

| North | South |
|---|---|
| 1NT | 3♢ |
| 7♢ | Pass |

A freak of this kind is very difficult to bid. However, North knows that if his partner can bid six clubs all by himself over a non-vulnerable one-notrump bid, the three Aces are bound to be of material assistance. There is a slight danger of South's holding a singleton spade, but information regarding this point has never be obtained and so the best policy is to gamble the hand out.

Science Foiled by Sleeping Sickness

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

A RECENT NEWS item describes the efforts of the United States public health service to combat that mysterious disease known as "sleeping sickness." An unusual increase in the number of cases of this ailment has been reported in the west and at one time the seriousness of the epidemic was alarming. Adequate measures taken by the Public Health Service commission, as well as by local health authorities and medical societies, minimized the danger and the spread of the disease.

Dr Copeland

The recent epidemic reported in this country is believed to have been caused by some insect that carries the germ of the disease. The insect has not, as yet, been isolated. Until this knowledge is obtained adequate measures for the prevention of the disease cannot be [illegible]

Occasionally physicians encounter patients who complain of symptoms similar to those of sleeping sickness, but upon examination it is found that these persons are suffering from some other ailment. A victim of sleeping sickness is stricken with a slight fever and complains of increasing drowsiness. The symptoms may come on suddenly or gradually.

As a rule the patient seems to be suffering from a slight head cold. Although the eyelids of the victim are closed, he may be awake but in a condition of semistupor. In other cases the sufferer loses consciousness and may sleep for days or weeks. Occasionally the sleeping spells are interrupted by severe emotional disturbances, and maniacal demonstrations. The victim often becomes delirious.

The Voice of Broadway

By LOUIS SOBOL

Down Memory Lane!

(With George Abbott, director, playwright and producer.)

On the CY Ranch, near Cheyenne, Wyoming, when eight years old. The ranch was owned by Governor Carey of Wyoming, the original for Judge Henry in Owen Wister's "Virginian." In my anxiety to impress the cow-punchers I wore high-heeled boots all summer long and they wore holes in the sides of my shins. The scars are still there, a tribute to my perseverance.

I played in the tryout of "Hell Bent for Heaven" at Asbury Park. Coming home on the train to New York a young man slouched behind me and spent an hour telling me what was wrong with my acting. I was so impressed with his eloquence and his reasoning—so impressed that I told him that I would like to have him produce a play I was then writing with James Gleason. He couldn't raise the money to do it and it went to the Shuberts. When Johnny Weaver and I wrote "Love 'Em and Leave 'Em" I persuaded Weaver that my voluble train companion was the man to do it. The eloquent one was Jed Harris.

My first love scene as an actor found me making passionate proposals to Alice Brady in "Zander, the Great." It was, as I say, my first love scene—previously I had been cast in what were termed comedy roles—and I was scared witless at the proposal. In my fright I played the scene so timidly that I was lavishly praised by the critics for under-playing a role that might easily be overplayed.

Fresh from Professor Baker's class at Harvard and giving myself six months to get a job as an actor in New York. On the last day I crept up the stairs of the office of William Harris, Jr., and got into "The Misleading Lady" just at the expiration of my own deadline. The leading man in that company later became a somebody in pictures—Lewis Stone. That was back in 1913 and I played a [illegible] college boy.

I was so elated at my apparent success on the stage that I got married immediately. In the next two years I earned just $500, and my wife had to go to work in her brother's law office so that the two of us could live.

Reciting eloquent pieces in a bad-fitting dress suit between numbers rendered by the Glee Club at the University of Rochester. So enamored by the platform that I wrote a play called "Perfectly Harmless" in which I dramatized the geology professor for whom I had great liking. I played the part of the doddering old man with many misgivings but he later congratulated me saying that the play was a great boost for geology, a science which, in Rochester, was falling into disrepute.

Sailing up the Nile in Africa with Neysa McMein and Alice Duer Miller and feeling a little puny and futile on observing evidences of civilization thousands of years older than ours scattered along the banks.

While playing with Lynn Fontanne on the road in "Dulcy," an understudy in the play came to me and said that she had written a comedy about a Southern flirt. Would I read it and help her with it? With her I rewrote it and we submitted it to Guthrie McClintic and other managers. They didn't like it so I washed my hands of it. My co-author—she was Ann Preston Bridgers—called me up three months later and said she had thought of a new plot for the piece which would make a tragedy of it. The new plot was good and we rewrote the play in three weeks. It was submitted to Richard Herndon but turned down because his star, Claiborne Foster, was afraid it was too dreary. Three years elapsed before it was dedicated on Broadway as Helen Hayes' greatest hit, "Coquette."

Playing the father of triplets with Jeanne Eagles in "Daddies," at the Belasco back in 1918, and getting my first notion of what right direction could do for plays as opposed to the sloppy direction I had previously observed. Belasco must have loved actors more than any other producer of our time. The lunches served at rehearsals took on the appearance of a conference and a fete. One day we had tripe for lunch and Jeanne piped up, "Give me some more of that fish!" She thought it was trout.

Meeting Belasco after the close of the run of "Daddies" on the street. As I approached he turned to his secretary, Tom Curry, and said hurriedly, in an undertone, "Who is it?" Then he turned to me and said, "Abbott, you're a great actor, and I'm looking for a great play for you." Mr Belasco had a genius for pleasing performers.

Intercepting Mr. Belasco all out of breath one afternoon as he darted out of the stage door of his theater where "Hit the Deck" was then playing. It developed that he was pursuing an author following some minor controversy. "I would have torn him to pieces with my own hands if those chorus girls back there hadn't stopped me!" he cried.

Listening to Jed Harris and Crosby Gaige argue that the last act of "Broadway" should be played in the office of Nick, the cabaret owner, because the audience would be bored by the constant running in and out of the girls in the Paradise Night Club. Jed holding out for "The Roaring Forties"—and that's still a pretty good title—and Gaige saying that neither one of them was any good. Awakened by the telephone early in the morning after the "Broadway" opening at the Broadhurst and having Phil Dunning read Percy Hammond's notice to me over the telephone. My amazement at the dimensions of that roaring hit.

My regret at being unable to see the opening night of my first play on Broadway. It was "The Fall Guy" and I was playing in "Processional" at the time replacing the actor who had succeeded me in the role because he was taken ill.

Treasuring associations with Maxwell Anderson, James Gleason, Winchell Smith, Johnny Weaver, Jim Tully, Ann Bridgers, Phil Dunning, Dana Burnett, Sam Lauren, Frank Craven, George Brooks, Walter Lister, with all of whom I have collaborated on plays.

Flattered when F. P. A. wrote, after hearing me sing "The Cowboy's Lament" in "The White Desert," "It is the best song that I ever heard." And the thrill when I received $48 royalties last June from a song which I wrote with Joseph Spurin-Calleia, later the shuffling waiter in "Broadway," when we were both playing in "The Broken Wing." It was called, believe it or not, "Adelaide."

Having the best time of my life on the annual excursions of the Artists and Writers to Palm Beach for their winter golf tournament. Rube Goldberg, Jeff Machamer, Rex Beach, Grantland Rice, Ham Fisher, and dozens of others relaxing as only artists and writers can relax when the opportunity presents itself.

John Golden and Winchell Smith bought Maxwell Anderson's interest in "The Holy Terror"—Anderson and I had written it together — for $1000; Winchell Smith and I then rewrote it and we all had a good laugh at Anderson when the play got "rave" notices in Baltimore in the tryout. Anderson laughed loud and long when the play proved a dismal flop in New York the following week. He was the only one who made a nickel out of it.

My last appearance as an actor in "Those We Love," a play which I directed for John Golden back in 1929. I played in it briefly, succeeding an actor named George Brent in the role of an adulterous conscience - stricken jackass." When I stepped out of the cast I, in turn, was succeeded by Warren William.

Playing a Nubian slave in a vaudeville sketch with Edna May Spooner for $35 a week and very glad to get it back in 1919.

Despite my contempt for superstition, particularly the one which many actors cling to—that it is fatal to utter the tag line of a play in rehearsal—and I find that I always like to hang my hat in the dressing room of the leading man or the leading woman at rehearsals and on opening nights, because I recall that I did that very thing during the preliminaries of my first success, "The Fall Guy."

Setting Sun Quilt

By LAURA WHEELER

The old-time quiltmaker, whose day often started with the rising sun, was so taken with the beauty of the sunrise and sunset, that she was inspired to capture it in her quilts. There are many Rising Sun and Setting Sun patterns, but probably the loveliest is this Setting Sun.

Here is not only the sun in all its glory, but the tiny clouds that so often accompany the sunset, are also scattered throughout the quilt. The rays of the sun can be done in scraps, as shown here, or the dark patches can all be done in one material and the light, figured ones in a second one.

Pattern 549 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for this pattern to Boston Evening American Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Ave., New York City.

KARLOFF IS CAST IN THRILLER

Carl Laemmle, Jr., Hopes to Repeat 'Dracula' Success; James Whale to Direct

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Los Angeles, Sept. 26—Uncle Carl Laemmle's boy, Junior, pioneered the movement for fantastic films with Dracula. It proved a money-maker. So have other similar Universal eerie thrillers. That's why young Carl is pinning his faith on "A Trip to Mars," which he has just purchased from its author, R. C. Sherriff.

Naturally, it's Karloff of the many strange roles who will get top billing. Also it seems natural for the old team of R. C. Sherriff and Jimmie Whale to work together again. It was Whale who directed "Journey's End," the play that brought Sherriff his first recognition.

Louella O. Parsons

And still another interesting personage is headed for Hollywood. Will James, famous cow boy author and artist has been signed by Sol Wurtzel to play a part in his own story, "Smoky." Mr. James is certainly versatile. Now he adds acting to his other accomplishments. Paramount is doing his "Lone Cowboy" and I am told that there is a demand for James' other books.

Claudio Frigerio's Singing of Title Role in 'Rigoletto' Features Performance

By MOSES SMITH

The Chicago Opera Company's opening at the Opera House was a howling success before the first [illegible] went up. Maestro Alfredo Salmaggi's forces, after surprising everyone by their remarkable popularity at the New York Hippodrome, indicated similar drawing power in this city, for the house was sold out from pit to uppermost [illegible]

HELPING HAND DEPARTMENT

Prominent leaders of industry are worried for fear that the new NRA thirty-five hour week will place leisure in the hands of people who do not know how to properly use leisure. To help solve this national problem, we have asked several great men to give a few words of advice to the new members of the leisure class.

D. Buckk[illegible] Odds, president of Oh! So-[illegible] M[illegible]: "What should the working man do with his leisure? The answer, it seems to me, is so obvious as to be perfectly [illegible]. The working man should spend his leisure going to picnics. But this does not mean that the [illegible] should toil in the hot kitchen preparing sandwiches. No, indeed! Don't be an old [illegible] mumble on [illegible] day."

I. Balboa Taffeleter, president of the Taffeleter Arms and Ammunition Co.: "While I am not one to spread alarm I cannot and must not mince words. This country is overrun with rabbits that viciously gnaw at the nation's vitals—or vittels you might say. Let us all join in a patriotic movement to use our spare time eliminating those cowardly rodents. And in the meantime let us help preserve that grand old American institution, the shooting gallery."

Those who salute less than 10 times a day, thus proving they do not think much of Adolf, [illegible] then be weeded out and put in some cool, damp place.

Oscar R. Rushmore, president of P[illegible] Dreams Mattress Co.: "I am often asked to state, in one word, a message to the American people. I have searched the dictionaries for that word. Today, friends, I give it to you. Consider it well. I refer to that beautiful little five letter word that means so much to our national health—'Relax.' A new era is at hand. Let us all have breakfast in bed for a change."

Charity Game Between Our Sox and Braves ↕ Danger of Letting Miss Smith Pitch Batting Practice

By AUSTEN LAKE

I am warning the Braves and Red Sox that they are making a serious mistake to let Miss Harriett Smith of Brookline pitch batting practice before tomorrow's charity baseball game and mixed sporting grill at Braves Field. Because women have an insidious habit of wedging into provinces where, by misguided chivalry, they are allowed to share the manly arts. Look at what Miss Babe Mitchell did to Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig during the spring exhibition game between the Yankees and that Southern barefoot league team three years ago. Why, she plumb struck out Ruth and Gehrig and created a propaganda that has scarred the reputations of both men ever since.

I confess to a mortal dread of girl baseball players because once in schoolboy days I was beaned very painfully by a wild pitch thrown by a neighbor's daughter. She was a left hander by the sissie name of Charmaine Noonan and she had a perky, tip-tilted snoot covered with freckles, a very ladylike snoot in itself, but her knees were hard little knobs that were covered with bramble scratches and raw scuffs from scaling the tops of picket fences. And she could fetch you a stunning lick with either fist on very short notice and without the usual formality of pawing the [illegible] as was the accepted custom among the boys. She just walked up with a disarming, tooth gapped grin and let you have it, smack!

Well Charmaine, or Slobber as the boys called her from the way she would appear with smears of breakfast egg or cereal on her chin, did everything the boys did, even to smoking cornsilk cigarettes. Only she had the hideous faculty of doing things better than the boys, and she would roll you as nifty a gasper out of newspaper and a corn tassel as ever strangled you half to death. Once she whopped Heinie Newman, a slender apple-cheeked lad, with an egg from behind Dillhurst's rose bush, as brilliant a bit of marksmanship as I ever saw. Heinie hated her for that, because it made him miss the Tuckers' party, and Slobber got a licking, so that she hated Heinie back.

What Happens to Girls Who Pitch Baseball Games!

By natural supremacy Slobber took command of the gang fete and insisted on pitching all the games back of Ruben's bakery. Sometimes she'd pitch for both sides and then arbitrarily go to bat on the impulse, regardless of whose turn it was. And she had a lot of stuff too, none of that duck-wing broken arm motion usual with girls, but a full arm, overhand delivery with a high hitch of the right knee that had the boys stepping with their feet in the waterbucket.

Only Slobber was not always ethical and sometimes she would let fly with the ball short of the regular pitching distance just to sneak over a quick pitch, which of course should properly have been a balk or something. But we stood for all this and various other cheats and indignities, because, as I said, she could hit you such a pretty lick on the kisser and sometimes would let you have it just to keep in practice. It didn't do much good to run either, because she was pretty fast and without losing stride could land you a neat kick in the middle of your pants.

I could have liked Slobber pretty well on account of her perky snoot and tip-tilted nose if she had not been such a bully and given to dirty work. But I never hated her so heartily as Heinie Newman did. And so, on the day that she suddenly whirled halfway up the pitching lane and whammed a quick pitch that caught me under the ear and stretched me cold, Heinie blew up and lathered into Slobber like a little windmill and, what is more, gave her a very handy licking.

Well, that was years ago and, until last spring, I had not been back to the old town since before the war. You can imagine my surprise to find that Slobber now is a sedate and rather prim lady in her middle thirties with a puritanical manner of pursing her lips and murmuring "Tsk, Tsk." She is Mrs. Heinie Newman now and has a brood of little Newmans, one of whom is a sturdy lass with a perky, tip-tilted snoot covered with freckles and knees that are hard little knobs with bramble scratches and raw scuffs from scaling picket fences. Her name is Charmaine, but from the traces of breakfast egg and cereal on her chin I know the boys must call her Slobber.

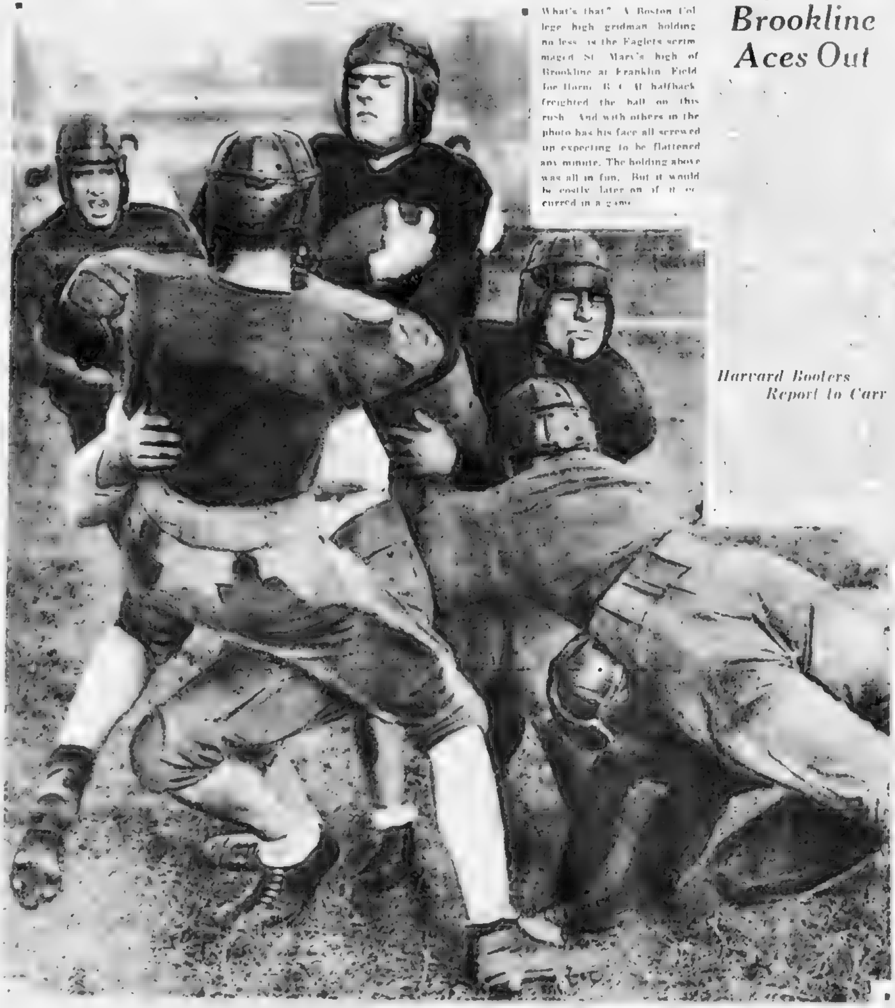
A Charity Roundup; From Ash Barrels to Baseball

As you see little beginnings sometimes have big endings and I shall always feel that the licking that Heinie Newman gave Miss Slobber Noonan behind Ruben's bakery was the pivotal point in both their lives and I am wondering what their destiny might have been if Slobber had missed my head with that sneaky pitch.

Perhaps this has little or nothing to do with the fact that Miss Harriett Smith of Brookline is going to pitch batting practice to the Red Sox and Braves before tomorrow's charity game except that I have a mortal dread of girl baseball players and warn the boys, if they don't take a toehold and flog Miss Smith's pitches all over the lot, she may turn up later with a printed handbill saying that she licked both Boston teams at once without allowing a hit or a run and is, therefore, a greater pitcher than Carl Hubbell. Because Miss Babe Mitchell was billed all over the country, as the girl who struck out Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, when she toured with the House of David nine.

O Yes! There is also going to be a program of ash barrel racing, a tug-of-war between political fatmen, a Red Sox-Braves relay race, and assortment of vaudeville and circus acts and the ball game at Braves Field tomorrow. Also little Dorothy Slam of Waltham, who won a world's championship for drum majoring at the Chicago Fair lately, is going to lead the Old Dorchester Post Band. Now there is something nice and girlish. But I still never get over a mortal dread of girl baseball players since the day when Miss Slobber Noonan beaned me behind Ruben's bakery.

'Hold Me' Refrain as B. C. H. -:- Scrimmages St. Mary's



What's that? A Boston College high gridman holding no less, as the Eaglets scrimmaged St. Mary's high of Brookline at Franklin Field. Joe Horn, B. C. H. halfback, freighted the ball on this rush. And with others in the photo has his face all screwed up expecting to be flattened any minute. The holding above was all in fun. But it would be costly later on if it occurred in a game.

The Noble Grid Potentates -:- Get Chief Okeson's Pointers

To insure everything being on the up and up this grid season, journeymen football officials who will honk and whistle on our New England gridirons this season gather around the black board while Commissioner of Officials Walter Okeson of Lehigh explains with diagrams some of the knotty problems the noble referees may run up against. Gathered about the festive board are Dr. Eddie O'Brien, Hugh McGrath, Tom McCabe, Bill Halloran of Providence and Dan Kelly, Massachusetts boxing commissioner, as well as football arbiter. Session took place at the B. A. A. clubhouse.

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

I NOTE BY the public press that Paul Bowser, your Dutch uncle of the razzling game, is polishing off his grunt and groaners for the opening of a new season of flying tackles, reverse back falls, airplane whirls and what not. Uncle Paul has been away with his horses for the summer. He started out at the small fairs where they have rough tracks and payoff in hayseed. He ended up on the Grand Circuit. He was probably as much surprised as I was when a couple of his horses knocked off Grand Circuit victories.

Mr. Boston

Racing, if you please, is Uncle Paul's pleasure. Wrestling is his business. If he dropped as much money showing grunt and groaners as he does spotting his stable of trotters and pacers around the country, the fans would have to stage some kind of a testimonial for Uncle Paul. Instead of letting him carry the well known bag for every worthy and unworthy charity [illegible] picture.

The [illegible] of [illegible] Bowser wrestlers will take place at the Boston Garden on Friday night. Bowser will pay the Garden $1500 for rent while his other overhead in connection with the promotion of the show will run $500 more. He will also have a rather lengthy list of [illegible] and referee to pay off.

Bowser held a meeting with himself, and decided it would be more satisfactory to have a [illegible] the Garden occupied [illegible] get off to a good [illegible] season. Of course he had Nick Lutze of California matched [illegible] Charley Strack of Oklahoma and Leo Numa of Washington [illegible] grapple with Dibber McCoy. They [illegible] plenty of [illegible]

Bowser, however, is an experienced showman and [illegible] that [illegible] to [illegible] a show but may [illegible] to see a [illegible] to get [illegible] the box office. So he [illegible] sixth prices at the Gate. He is offering Friday [illegible] at from 50 cents to [illegible] new low in Garden [illegible] Bowser argues it [illegible] better for [illegible] to have the Garden filled at these prices than half [illegible] at a higher price.

Numa Is After George

LEO NUMA does not make any secret of the fact that a bout with Ed Don George is his main objective. As the "Masked Marvel," Numa gave George a stirring battle at Fenway Park last summer. Now that he isn't hiding his noble face under a hood, Numa feels he can pin the champion. It is still a free country, and every man has a right to his opinion, so let Numa stick to his beliefs. Maybe some day he will prove I had the wrong dope.

Of course if McCoy licks Numa, the latter will have to forget all about becoming a champion.

I understand Charley Strack has been playing football as part of his training to get physically fit. I should think he would get into a collision with a steam roller instead. A steam roller sometimes does not hurt as much as an opposing tackle.

McPherson Back in Town

LEE McPHERSON, who was in [illegible] wrestling [illegible] the Arena, has leased the Auditorium in Cleveland for wrestling. He will have complete [illegible] to wrestling in Cleveland. McPherson brings back greetings from Ed Bang, sporting editor of the Cleveland News. I have been reading Bang's expert articles on baseball and boxing these many years.

McPherson stepped into the Arena to get Paul Bowser away from a lease that figured to cost him $12,000 a year. McPherson put wrestling over at the Arena and it wasn't necessary for Bowser to kick in a dime towards the $12,000 rental. Incidentally McPherson's wrestling shows at the Arena, with "Bull" Martin as the headliner, attracted 200,000 persons. He furnished the fans with attractive cards, and plenty of action. He kept the price range within reach of the deflated pocketbook which is one of the reasons he made good. I feel McPherson will prove successful in Cleveland.

RAND, BENNETT PRESS 'D' VETS

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 26 — As Dartmouth started its third week of fall training it became apparent that the present regular backfield will have to fight tooth and nail to retain the advantage they now hold over several subs who are doing outstanding work.

Wilbur "Ike" Powers of Newton, the hockey star and shifty off halfback, has a hard fight ahead of him to maintain his first team rating over little Normie Rand of Salem, Mass., and [illegible] Jack Hill of Littleton, N. H., triple-threat man, both of whom have been kept on the [illegible] with injuries to date.

[illegible] first scrimmage of the year, after recovering from a shoulder injury, Rand demonstrated his worth when he took the first pass from center and skirted right end for 37 yards. Although Canned worked [illegible] the 145-pound former Salem H[illegible] away for substantial gains on off star but a few minutes. Rand got away for substantial gains on off tackle plays and his [illegible] brought praise from Coach Canne.

Rand is one of the best kickers that Canne [illegible] has. Although shoulder injuries kept Normie from working out with the team for several days he concentrated on punting practice and is now getting away boots of 60 and 65 yards on the [illegible]

Jack Hill, former Worcester Academy athlete and a varsity baseball pitcher, has been retarded this fall by a strained muscle. When Jack is fully recovered, which is expected to be by the middle of the week, he will give both Powers and Rand plenty to worry about.

George "Jocko" Stangle of Hartford is proving perhaps the hardest running and one of the [illegible] Dartmouth backs in scrimmages. Jocko is Sammy Fishman's understudy at the right halfback position. Both men call signals from this position, and the ex-Malden high athlete will have a fight to keep his post.

Critz Defensive Ace; Myer Stronger at Bat

By BILL SLOCUM

New York, Sept. 26—Two very capable workmen, each with several years of major league experience behind him, will be in charge of the important second base section when Senators and Giants come to grips next week.

If they were to be compared merely on their defensive skill, the nod would belong to Hughey Critz, the flashy second sacker of the National League champions, even though Buddy Myer of the Senators ranks high among the players of the position.

In all around value to his club, Myer must be rated as well above the brilliant Critz. The difference is to be found in stickwork, a condition which carries so strongly in Washington's favor in several of the individual comparisons of World Series players.

Critz is a light hitter as regards [illegible] and he is a weak [illegible] regards power, or length [illegible] Playing on a field [illegible] home runs have been so [illegible] this year Critz has [illegible] for himself only one and [illegible] triples are to be found [illegible] performances though [illegible] almost every game until [illegible] spike wound necessitated [illegible]

[illegible] averaged .278 in his major league career up to this season [illegible] he has been well below that figure this year.

Myer on the other hand will be a distinct cause for worry anytime he faces the plate. He has batted close to .300 since he became a regular with the Senators in 1926 and recent averages show him hitting .296.

Though not particularly big as ball players go, he carries plenty of power in his swing and gets his share of the long drives. He has a keen eye at the plate and seldom strikes out. He is the Senators' lead-off man, further evidence of his ability to pick out the good ones and let the bad ones ride.

Defensively Myer is not the smooth workman that Critz is, but he plays his position a little better than the average second base man of his league. Like Critz he is a heads-up, wide awake [illegible] ball all the time and [illegible] the bases to the fullest possibilities on his own drives and on those of the batters behind him.

EXTEND SALEM RACING A DAY

Concord, N. H., Sept. 26 (AP)—New Hampshire welfare agencies will benefit from receipts at Rockingham Park, Salem, next Monday under a charity day program the race track commission announced today.

Kishon, Field Event Star, Freshman at Bates

Kishon is one of the greatest all-around athletes ever developed around Boston. He can run, jump and throw weights, heave a javelin 190 feet, and is still growing.

He clears 23 feet in the broad jump, does well in his jumping, and sprints well enough to be figured in any company.

For a time Kishon was headed for Harvard, but he spent the summer in a Maine camp and has gone to Bates. If Tony wanted to play football he would be a star because of his speed, weight and competitive power.

NEWELL BUILDS NEW BELMONT GRID MACHINE FROM '32 WRECK

FIVE VETERANS LEFT FROM CHAMP CLUB

By BILL CONNELL

A new and powerful Belmont high school team is rising from the ashes of the champion 1932 group which whirled the school up into the head of the class of Greater Boston football last season.

Gone to Harvard are the great backfield pair George Ford and Leo Ecker, Bob Jones, pivot extraordinary, Capt. Keith Higgins, right end, and others of last year's warriors.

But the present team is building under the skillful hands of Coach Tom Newell, aided by Lewis "Pollie" Harris, and is up among the front runners in the race as the season wanes.

Five veterans of the '32 skirmishes are back with five lettermen from the same team. Another boy, letter winner in 1931, has returned after a year's layoff. Coach Newell's round, pleasant face around developing few wrinkles with the above foundation for his team.

"These Belmont boys are very good football students," he said today. "Perhaps they'll make a good team. There are 70 out now and we won't drop any. Maybe from among those boys can be developed enough good subs to carry on the first team's work."

SUBS ARE FEW

The subs hold the [illegible] the Belmont grid problem for while the first team can chant along smoothly, few are the able replacements now on deck.

To say the team chants along [illegible] figure of speech. The boys actually chirp numbers [illegible] before and after [illegible] the starting signal, which make the affair bothersome to the enemy.

"Sometimes they break the cadence," says Newell. "Ford was a wonder in such a spot and knew just when a change in rhythm would upset the opposition badly."

Anthony DeNatale, halfback last year, calls the plays now. A quick moving performer, he steps the offense along with plenty of drive. With him in the backfield are Herb MacUrdy, a regular last year, and Costello, who was the star spare cog for the quarter of '32.

Costello is the Arkansas Traveler of the squad, for he trekked to the West Coast, spent the summer in California and returned a bit late for practice but in good condition.

The front wall has Capt. George Asteriades, 150-pound guard, for its keystone. Asteriades [illegible] aggressive and smart guard who bolstered his mates when [illegible] out in the line at practice. He is coming a fine leader.

The other veterans [illegible] Gardner [illegible] a dependable man under pressure. The two protect [illegible] Abbott, letterman center last year, who weighs only 135. Abbott [illegible] seem likely to win him the pivot's job over Harry Peterson.

Paul [illegible] may step into the middle of the line at guard.

OPP AT TACKLE

The Opp expect to take one of the tackle spots. He [illegible] pounds heavy and [illegible] a lightweight. None of the [illegible] in action by him that checks so many heavy shoebox. Bob Glass who is learning rapidly may share the other tackle duty.

Fred Barnard, an inexperienced but game, rangy and intelligent gridman, later in the season may be ready for play at tackle. He has the makings.

Two lettermen ends of [illegible], Wallace Taylor and Winthrop "Jimmy" Jameson, have the wings sewed up just now. Al Sarafian, letter man end in 1931 but idle last year, could be a wing but probably will stay with the backfield entries.

None of the others have shown much yet. Now the above boys can fight with any of the [illegible] foes. And will knock over many teams through the season probably starting when Weymouth comes to Belmont Saturday for the opener.

But will the subs develop? Tom Newell wishes he knew the answer to that query. He'd then know whether to expect a very good year or just a fair fall.

Harvard Freshmen to Learn Rambler Play

By DAVID F. EGAN

A flock of new freshmen, something less than 150 of them, reported for the Harvard freshman football team. Coach Cliff Gavagan [illegible] even more confused by [illegible] Notre Dame attack to them.

A young giant, who stands six feet four inches above the level of the sea and answers to the famous name of Franklin Delano Roosevelt Jr., attracted a curious throng of newspapermen but failed to put in an appearance. He played quite a lot of tackle at Groton last year, and they say that he is quite certain to land on the freshman squad, even if he doesn't become a regular.

He passes and runs, which is about all that can reasonably be expected of any football player. Ecker is the quiet worker who will probably never receive the credit he deserves. It is the fate of valuable backs of his type that the boy who runs with the ball crashes the headlines after he has crashed through holes opened up by the draggers.

Things are not so blue for the Crimson. I should say though Frank Ryan, the director of public relations, was moaning because it was the smallest freshman squad Harvard has had in years. Your eyes did some eyebrow lifting at this statement, for the varsity squads at Tufts, Boston University and other colleges in that class are much smaller both in numbers and in physiques.

In addition to Ford and Ecker the temporary first-string backfield seemed to consist of Tommy Biledeau and Joe Owens, a squatty, swarthy quarterback who captained

Dempsey Blames Machine Age for Dearth of Fighters

Pasadena, Calif., Sept. 26 (AP)— Jack Dempsey, the barn-storming referee de luxe, wiped beads of perspiration off the forehead which once wore the heavyweight boxing championship of the world, took a look at two fighters who had just left his charge in a ring and attacked the "machine age" for the extinction of boxing killers.

"The real champions came," he said, "from the mines, the blacksmith shops or the iron works, where muscles were developed and bodies toughened by old Mother Nature and hard work.

"Now all that hard work which developed a Fitzsimmons or a Jefferies is being done by machines. Our present day fighters are the product of the gymnasium."

It is my belief that railway executives themselves are unaware of the extent of the new transportation era we are entering. Success of the U. P.'s new streamlined trains may eventually mean an entirely new railroad system, the adjustment of tracks for faster speed, establishment of new booking systems, new controls, and hundreds of other innovations which will revolutionize the entire railroad industry.

New streamlined automobiles can solve the automobile problem simply enough, but for a railroad it would mean building new station approaches, rebanking the roadbed and practically scrapping our entire equipment. Happily, the new streamlined trains will be cheaper to operate, yet will offer greater comfort.

If the U. P.'s great experiment proves successful there is more than a probability that the Pennsylvania will place orders for similar trains.

Wall St. Looking for Buying From Abroad

In spite of the imposition of a foreign exchange control to prevent a flight from the dollar as far back as March, bankers say it has been comparatively easy to get money out of the country so far as money amounts are concerned. # MODERATE RISE IS RECORDED FOR LEADERS

The inflationary bee buzzed but faintly in the financial markets and cautious traders, though cheerful, were inclined to restrain their enthusiasm for ultra-bullish or bearish sentiment.

Stocks, fairly firm during most of the session, were turned over in an extremely small volume. A few specialties, led by the alcohols, moved up substantially. But the ticker tape was not pressed at any time and frequently it moved at a halting gait.

Grains and Cotton were just about steady and other commodities were different. Bonds mulled about in an unimprtant range. The dollar was equally listless in foreign exchange dealings, holding around its previous levels.

Extreme gains of 2 to 4 points came in Allied Chemical, National Distillers, Seaboard Oil and Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit. Other extreme advances of fractions to around 2 points were recorded by U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, American Telephone, Du Pont, New York Central, Santa Fe, Western Union, American Can, Case, Consolidated Gas, U. S. Smelting, Cerro De Pasco, Manhattan Elevated and Manhattan Guaranteed.

Peoples Gas passed its dividend and the stock dropped about 5 points on the first sale. U. S. Smelting, however, declared a 50-cent extra disbursement and Allied Chemical paid the regular. Interest in New York traction stocks was believed to reflect hopes that the city's present financial stringency would be eased through some agreement with the banks.

Issues showing point or better gains in the first hour included Cerro de Pasco, J. I. Case, American Can, American Commercial Alcohol, Commercial Solvents and Bethlehem.

Homestake was down 5 points. National Distillers and U. S. Smelting rose more than 2 points, while Brooklyn-Manhattan was up 3 points, strength at the same time showing in New York traction lines.

Stocks moved at a lazy pace through the second hour, but the trend was toward slight improvement over early gains. Specialties continued to feature the list. By noon Allied Chemical showed a net advance of 3 points, while Goodyear and Celanese were up 1 and 2 points respectively.

The old talk of higher traction fares brought heavy buying into this group. It was largely traders' operations, however, and brought comparatively little following as this is a moss-grown rumor.

In the third hour Allied Chemical was up more than 4 points. Brooklyn-Manhattan was up 2. Shares up 2 or beter included J. I. Case, Air Reduction, American Smelting, Bethlehem Steel and Seaboard Oil.

National Distillers was over 3 points higher. Gains of a point or better were held by U. S. Steel, U. S. Smelting, Pennsylvania, du Pont, Commercial Solvent, Lacakawanna, Atchison and American Commercial Alcohol. Homestake reduced its earlier drop to a point.

There was some covering of shorts by professionals, but the general public still stands aloof from trading and has not participated in the market to any extentf or some time.

Sales to 1 P. M. approximated 800,000 shares.

Prices continued to show higher in the fourth hour for most pivotal shares. Point or better gains held for U. S. Steel, Schenley, Pennsylvania, National Distillers, Delaware & Hudson, Commercial Solvent, Celanese, Cerro de Pasco and Allied Chemical.

Industrial Rayon advanced almost 3 points following reports of a shortage in the rayon markets. Chrysler and Homestake were sold off a point and U. S. Smelting eased fractionally. Amerada was off 2 points.

Utility shares were firm and the omission of the Peoples Gas dividend failed to have any affect.

Trading was quiet throughout the session and the ticker was up to the market at all times.

Advocates of a stabilized dollar are disposed to attribute some of the recent recessions in industry to currency uncertainties. Future planning of trade and business, they contend, would be on a broader and more constructive basis if the medium of exchange could be pinned down to a narrower fluctuating range.

Some economists, however, feel that, owin gto foreign as well as domestic problems, an attempt to stabilize the dollar at this time would be a mistake.

Sales to 2 p. m. approximated 1,020,000 shar .se

Shortage in Rayon Market Announced

With rayon mills entirely sold up on November yardage the shortage has become acute and some weavers have been compelled to shut down part of their equipment because of lack of material, the Paterson tie-up having taken a great deal of the cheaper silk fabrics out of the market. Situation has again brought out rumors of yarn price advances.

Seubert Sees Oils Leading Recovery

Chicago, Sept. 26—Members of the Central States committee to administer the oil code will meet here early next week to organize and begin duties entrusted to them by the Department of Interior, according to Edward C. Seubert general chairman.

Mr. Seubert, who is president of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, sees the oils as leading in national recovery.

Carloadings Gain for Week Reported

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—Freight traffic reports for last week, available today, showed general increases in loading over the previous week.

The St. Paul Railroad handled 25,045 cars against 24,228 the week before and 25,684 a year ago; Nickel Plate 12,683 against 12,433 and 11,268; Chicago & North Western 24,322 against 22,862 and 23,101.

American Dollar Changes Narrowly

London, Sept. 26 (AP)—The United States dollar fluctuated narrowly in a quiet market today, closing at $4.74½ to the pound, a slight decrease in value from yesterday's close of $4.73½.

The dollar was strongest at the opening—$4.73½—and twice in the afternoon the rate weakened to $4.75¼.

Devoe & Raynolds' Profit Is $417,361

Devoe & Raynolds, Inc., reports for quarter ended Aug. 31, 1933, profit of $417,361 after expenses, depreciation, etc., but before federal taxes.

For nine months ended August 31 last, profit before federal taxes was $465,990 against net loss of $128,000 in the corresponding nine months of preceding fiscal year.

U. S. Over-Subscription

Subscriptions of $196,624,000 were received for the $75,000,000 91-day Treasury bills. Awarded at average interest rate of 0.11 per cent.

Banks Hunt for Good Borrowers

New York, Sept. 26—As a reply to the charge that banks are withholding credit from worthy commercial borrowers, leading New York banks have started intensive campaigns to locate good borrowers who can make use of surplus funds now cramming the banks. Chase National has sent letters to all depositors maintaining balances of $25,000 or more, asking them if they need credit. Guaranty Trust is communicating with former borrowers who have not lately been using their credit lines.

Westinghouse Gets Order

An order totalling $35,697 for electric motors has been received by the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company from the city of Chicago. The motors—six 1500 horsepower synchronous motors—will drive centrifugal pumps in the city's new Cermak pumping station.

N. Y.-Richmond Dividend Off

New York, Sept. 26—Due to reductions of rates, imposition of addition city excise taxes and refusal of the Public Service Commission to grant application for authority to issue bonds which would permit the company to reimburse its treasury for capital expenditures, the directors of the New York & Richmond Gas Company have voted to defer action on the preferred dividend payable October 1.

Zinc Cartel Threatened

Paris, Sept. 26—Belgian group of zinc producers has given notice of its withdrawal from the International Zinc Cartel October 31, 1933, owing to discontent regarding the working of the penalty provisions under the new conditions of competition disadvantageous to the Belgian producers that have arisen from fluctuations in exchange. The next meeting of the cartel will be held September 30.

Brokers' Code Hearing Oct. 17

The hearing on the code for stock exchange brokers has been set for October 17, it was learned here. No official announcement of the date has been made, however, and officials say it might be changed before the hearing is scheduled to begin in Washington.

Utilities Power Net $1,095,532

Report of Utilities Power & Light Corporation for 12 months ended July 30, 1933, shows net income of $1,095,532 after all charges, including depreciation and taxes. These are the earnings of the corporation and its public utility subsidiaries, all non-utility subsidiaries having been segregated and carried in the balance sheet as investments.

Cons. Gas Expenses Rise

New York, Sept. 26—Consolidated Gas Company of New York and its affiliates expect to incur additional expenses of more than $2,000,000 during the next 12 months as a result of the NRA, increased water rates and proposed excise tax on gross income in New York city, according to summary submitted at hearing before New York Public Service Commissioner Van Namee.

Stabilization Rumors Heard

London, Sept. 26 (US)—Persistent rumors of probable early stabilization of the dollar and pound sterling had noticeable effects on the stock and foreign exchange markets here. Lombard Street and leading bankers, however, do not believe the time is ripe for stabilizing the pound, especially while Britain's war debt liability is unsettled.

Madison Sq. Loss Is Larger for Quarter

Madison Square Garden Corp. and wholly-owned subsidiaries report for quarter ended Aug. 31, 1933, net loss of $165,523 after depreciation and other charges, against let loss of $156,144 in the like period of 1932.

The foregoing figures do not include operations of Boston Madison Square Garden Corp., a partly-owned subsidiary, which showed a net loss for the quarter ending Aug. 31, 1933, of $31,839, against a let loss of $25,893 in August quarter of 1932.

Boston Bids Made on Loan to Salem

Salem has awarded to Blyth & Co., Inc., at 100.421 for 3½s $65,000 street paving loan dated June 1, and payable 1934 to 1938. Other bidders were: for 3½s, Lee Higginson & Co., 100.12 and Newton, Abbe & Co., 100.07; for 3¾s, E. H. Rollins & Sons 100.333; Bond & Goodwin 100.288, Tyler, Butterick & Co., 100.172 and Salem Five Cents Savings Bank 100.099; for 4s, Faxon, Gade & Co., 100.14; Naumkeag Trust Co., 100.09 and F. S. Moseley & Co., 100.035.

Mining Company's Dividend Raised

Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. declared a quarterly dividend of 12½ cents per share, payable October 2 to stock of record September 22. In two previous quarters the company paid 7½ cents a share.

In connection with the liquidation of Eastern Equities Corp. (formerly American Glue Co.) stockholders in 1932 received for each share one-half share of Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. stock in addition to cash.

Commercial Loans in Boston Rising

Boston banks state that their commercial loans are picking up in volume, but that the whole expansion has been of modest proportions. Rates are about as low on good loans as they have been at any time in recent years, for to date the supply of credit is much in excess of demand of a type that can properly be met by commercial banks.

Closing on London Exchange Is Quiet

London, Sept. 26 (AP)—Business on the stock exchange today continued on a compartively small scale. German bonds again improved, while home rails and industrials were dull. Transatlantic and oil shares developed irregularity. The market closed quiet.

Bar Silver Is Higher

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—Bar silver steady, ¼ higher at 39

WALL ST. WILL KEEP LEAD AS STOCK CENTER

That was assured today as Mayor John P. O'Brien and administration leaders awaited a response from financial firms on an offer to kill two city tax bills affecting brokerage houses provided the brokers drop their plan to transfer bulk of securities trading to New Jersey.

Indications in the financial district today were that the offer would be accepted and plans for moving the exchange would be held in abeyance.

But as the administration awaited decision of the brokers, collapse of the entire emergency tax program was foreseen if the mayor vetoes the bills levying a stock transfer tax and a tax on gross earnings of brokerage houses.

If these measures are vetoed, it was forecast in political circles, groups affected by other taxes in the emergency program will press for their abandonment also and will take legal action to challenge their validity.

The about face on the financial taxes came at a public hearing on the measures at which Samuel Untermyer, who formulated the tax program, advised the mayor to veto the bills if exchange officials agreed to drop their plans for moving.

Supervised Shares Dividend Ordered

Directors of Supervised Shares, Inc., have declared a quarterly dividend of .015 per share on the capital stock, payable October 15 to shareholders of record September 30. In accordance with its usual policy the corporation has not taken into consideration the profit and loss from the sale of securities in determining the amount of the distribution.

Gold Price $31.49 an Ounce, Up 19 Cts.

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—Today's newly-mined gold price was announced by the Treasury at $31.48, an increase of 19 cents an ounce over yesterday's quotation.

Japanese Rayon Making Gains in German Market

Washington, Sept. 26—Japanese rayon is making notable progress in the important German market, according to a report from Consul S. B. Redecker, Frankford-on-Main, made public by the commerce department. The past several months, the report shows, German imports of this Japanese product have increased to a marked degree, a significant development in view of the contraction occurring in Germany's import trade as a whole.

Although German rayon imports were sharply curtailed in the first half of the current year, dropping to around 2000 metric tons compared with 3290 tons in the corresponding period of 1932, receipts from Japan rose from a negligible figure to 76 tons. Prospects are, according to the report, that rayon deliveries from Japan for the last half of 1933 will show further advances.

While Japanese rayon sales still constitute a relatively small share of the entire German consumption, Consul Redecker points out that they are significant not only because of their rapidly expanding tendency but also because of the vigorous efforts of European producers to control the German market and exclude Japanese concerns. The organized cartel producers have endeavored to compel the exclusive purchase of their production by agreement with the rayon consumers, but the increasing imports from Japan appear to indicate that the cartel has not been successful in completely controlling the German market situation.

Gross Farm Income Viewed as Larger

Standard Statistics Co. of New York now estimates probable 1933 gross farm income at $7,670,000,000 exclusive of possible cash bonuses to be received from the government under operation of the AAA. This is 46 per cent in excess of the government estimate of $5,240,000,000 for 1932 gross income, but 36 per cent below that of 1929, and about 55 per cent below the peak recorded in 1919. Including the expected additional cash income of some $250,000,000 under the terms of the marketing act, total income may be expected to reach close to $8,000,000,000.

Life Insurance Men Unite to Advertise

A new insurance advertising group, composed of leading life insurance companies of the United States and Canada, effected organization at a meeting in Chicago under the name of Life Advertisers Association, and elected Nelson A. White, of the Provident Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Philadelphia, as their first president.

Organization of the association is for the purpose of formulating and promoting advertising policies designed to further the interests of the institution of life insurance. Other officers elected were as follows: Stephen Swisher, of the Equitable Life of Iowa, vice-president; D. Bobb Slattery, of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Philadelphia, treasurer; and Bart Leiper, of the Pilot Life Insurance Co., Greensboro, N. C., secretary.

In his speech of acceptance, Mr. White pointed out that a decade ago only three of the large life insurance companies of the country were national advertisers.

"Today there are 14," he said. "While other industries decreased their advertising appropriation because of the depression, life insurance has increased its annual appropriation for national advertising in newspapers, magazines, and radio from a million and a half in 1929 to two million and a half at the present time. It is obvious that advertising is playing a bigger part in life insurance than it ever has before. Life insurance advertising has grown so spectacularly, and has become so specialized, that a separate organization to cover that activity had become a necessity.

"Life insurance has been the outstanding industry of the depression," Mr. White continued. "It has kept the faith. The man in the street is vaguely conscious of these facts—but he does not really know them. We must tell him."

Wheat Stages Rally in Chicago Market

Chicago, Sept. 26—After sagging at the start today, wheat futures rallied around a cent to sell above yesterday's finish. The rise accompanied a moderate influx of purchase orders of Eastern origin. Corn and oats were easy compared with wheat. Primary receipts of corn were larger than either last week or a year ago. Besides reports indicated that the 1933 corn crop was now largely beyond frost danger.

Big British Loan to Be Sold at 94

London, Sept. 26 (AP)—The government announced today an issue of a £150,000,000 (currently $712,500,000) conversion loan, carrying 2½ per cent, at 94.

Cotton Steady in New York Trading

New York, Sept. 25—Cotton futures displayed a steady tone today and at midday held a few points above the previous closing levels. With Liverpool 8 to 11 American points lower than due, the market here opened off 3 to 7 points and then rallied moderately in sympathy with securities.

Late prices were up 1 to 4 points with December up 2 at 10.15, January up 4 at 10.25, March up 1 at 10.30, May up 4 at 10.58 and July up 3 at 10.77.

BOSTON STOCK PRICES RUN MOSTLY UP

Prices for shares on the Boston Stock Exchange ran mostly on the upside today. Mill shares were quiet and earlier gains were shaded in the afternoon. American Woolen, Bigelow-Sanford and Pacific Mills were all up a point or so in the forenoon. Sullivan Machinery gained a point.

Eastern Gas & Fuel common was up a point. Moderate gains appeared for United Shoe, Torrington, Pennsylvania Railroad, Kennecott, General Electric, Gillette and American Telephone.

Boston Edison was churned around at fractional advances. Edison directors declared regular quarterly dividend of $2.50 a share, payable Nov. 1 to stock of record Oct. 10.

Authentic Air Drama of U. S. Progress

By N. F. T.

Ever so much fur has been flying for a long while about more time and facilities controlled by the broadcasting fraternity being devoted to high educational purposes along diversified lines. Numerous organizations have been keenly alert and apprehensive while observing trends toward commercialism. These are the vigilantes claiming loudly that the air is an avenue through which extended education should come, rather than so much advertising.

* * *

There are those of course who oppose such a viewpoint on the basis that people don't tune in to be educated. Thus and so the controversy stands, with rather dull edged attention being paid to arguments of either faction by most loudspeaker patrons. Average listeners can take radio or leave it alone it seems. However, the CBS network people are putting on a brand new series of programs that appear to be a rare and unusual combination of education and entertainment. It's labeled "The Legend of America" and starts tonight (WAAB) at 10 o'clock.

* * *

CAVALCADE COLORING

Political, economic and social progress recorded in the historic volumes dealing with life on this continent, have been dramatized and prepared for broadcasting. From six to twelve episodes will be staged during each half hour. Thus the production shall be fast moving throughout and not concentrated on one selected story.

* * *

Those gay bridge bits known as "Easy Aces" are not slated for evening air time this year. They start the 1933-34 season today (WNAC) from 1:30 until 1:45 p. m. Four days a week will find the sketches taking place, namely Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

* * *

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is speaking to a nation wide audience between 1 and 2 o'clock this afternoon (WBZ-WBZA) from Boston. An address by the first lady originates at the Chamber of Commerce and deals with the Salvation Army cause.

* * *

LOCAL LATHER

Ranny Weeks headed New Yorkward yesterday to confer further as to how those who would handle his booking business over there are shaping things so Ranny can settle down to a fall and winter "mike" schedule. Bob (Big Brother) Emery has his well-known special "Spelling Bee" series up for discussion. In addition, he's waiting for good word from New York regarding a comfortable network place being held open for him. Said good word has to do with money, says Bob. Joe Rines heard back at his old Sunday night stand (WNAC) indicating things are quite okay once more. More smart Hub studio shows would be going strong on the "German Beer Garden" theme right now if it weren't for far sighted brewery bosses pondering possible reaction on the part of Jewish tuners in.

Gov. Seligman Dies at Bankers' Meeting

Albuquerque, N. M., Sept. 26—Stricken after addressing a meeting of the New Mexico State Bankers' Association, Gov. Arthur Seligman of New Mexico is dead here.

The governor motored here from Santa Fe and appeared in good health. He had just completed his address and was listening to another speech when he complained of a sharp pain in his chest.

He left the convention room and was assisted to a nearby room. He died within 15 minutes. Physicians said angina pectoris caused the death.

Heart Attack Kills Canadian Senator

Ottawa, Sept. 26—Senator Pascal Poirier, last appointee of Sir John A. MacDonald to the upper chamber, died here suddenly from a heart attack.

The 81-year-old senator had been actively engaged in the discharge of his business and personal duties up to the time of the sudden heart seizure.

The WASHINGTON SIDE SHOW

Washington, Sept. 26 (US)—Since becoming head of the NRA, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson has had his picture in the papers more often than any other American. Yet, there is a hotel clerk out in Dayton, O., who did not know him from Adam's off ox. And said so.

Gen. Kugh Johnson

Sheriff Jurney

Now, the general, for all his reputation as a rip-snorting high-pressure executive, is a mild-mannered individual as a rule. But that got his "goat."

Flying back to Washington from Chicago, his plane was grounded at Dayton at 4 o'clock in the morning. The generel decided to get some much needed sleep. Without baggage, he went to a hotel and asked for a room. The clerk insisted upon payment in advance. Prepared to pay, but nettled by the clerk's attitude, Johnson roared

"But I'm General Johnson!"

"Yes," wisecracked the clerk, "and I'm Henry Ford. You can't put a fast one over on me."

The irate Johnson stormed out of the lobby and went to another hotel where he secured a room. But he paid in advance.

Pleas Trail Hurja

E. Edward Hurja, once the "Axe Man" for Postmaster General Jim Farley and now administrative assistant of the public works administration, no longer possesses patronage dispensing powers. But Democratic Congressmen in search of jobs to satisfy importunate constituents still flock to Hurja's office in the Interior building.

Unflattered by this attention, Hurja shunts them on to E. K. Burlew, Secretary Ickes' personnel officer. And Hurja amuses himself making maps, charts and grafs and playing with figures.

Stories to Follow

"Sheriff" Chesley W. Jurney, of Texas, Sergeant-at-arms of the Senate, is sailing for Europe, his first sojourn abroad in a quarter of a century. He made his first voyage in his callow days and "wrote it up" for some Texas papers. Some of his friends around the Senate, with a vivid recollection of that series, hope the genial Texan will find time for some literary efforts. One of his flights of the pen described crossing the English Channel.

He visualized John Paul Jones, "striding the bridge of the sinking Bon Homme Richard, flinging his immortal challenge that comes ringing down the centuries like the trumpet call to battle" to the British commander of the frigate Serapis:

"I have not yet begun to fight."

Whatnots

Atop the building housing the American Automobile Association, which complains bitterly about the agricultural adjustment administration appropriating the A. A. A. initials, is a huge eagle balancing on the tip of the flag pole . . . The owners have not yet taken advantage to give a painter work under the NRA by having the bird painted a swell shade of blue . . . Keen competition between the two great broadcasting companies resulted in two speeches on the administration farm relief program Sunday night . . . When National secured Secretary Wallace as a headliner for 10:30, Columbia induced George N. Peek, A. A. A. headman, to speak at 10:45 . . . A beauty contest will be held among the NRA stenos. . . . The most pulchritudinous typewriter and heart wreckers in Washington.

CARAMEL RICE PUDDING

1-3 cup rice
½ tsp. lemon extract
3 eggs
2 tbsps. butter
¼ tsp. salt
2 cups milk
¼ cup Sultana raisins
2 tbsps. powdered sugar
¼ cup granulated sugar

Melt the granulated sugar in a small saucepan and cook until brown, but do not burn. Pour it while hot into a pudding mold and tip mold to cover the sides and bottom well. Wash the rice, parboil and drain. Cook slowly in the milk for 30 minutes, add the powdered sugar, butter, salt, raisins, flavoring and the well beaten eggs and pour into the mold. Set the mold in pan of boiling water and bake in oven until firm. Turn out of mold, while warm and serve either hot or cold.

KATHRYN O'DAY
10 Bush st., Westfield, Mass.

CHINESE CHEWS

2 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 cup flour
1 tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
1 cup nuts
1 cup dates

Beat the eggs until light and add the sugar. Sift the flour, salt and baking powder and add the chopped nuts and dates. Combine this mixture with the eggs and sugar. Mix well and spread in a greased pan about 7 by 10 inches. Bake in a moderate oven for 25 minutes. When cool cut in squares like brownies. These keep very well as the dates have a tendency to keep them moist.

RUTH M. TILLEY

ASPARAGUS SUPREME

2 cans asparagus tips
4-6 hard cooked eggs
1 small jar pimientos
1½ cups medium white sauce.

Drain the liquid off the asparagus and cut with the eggs and pimientos into small pieces. Mix well and pour over it the well seasoned white sauce. Place in an oven glass baking dish, cover with bread crumbs and bits of butter. Bake slowly for 40-60 minutes. Serve hot.

MAE McLAUGHLIN

INDIVIDUAL BLACKBERRY PIES

½ cup sugar
Pastry
Cream cheese

To make six individual pies, wash and cook 1 qt. blackberries with just enough water to cover the bottom of the saucepan, add from ½ to ¾ cup of sugar and set aside to cool. Line small, rather deep, individual pie tins with rich pastry, having it especially thick around the top of the pans. Fill with the berries and arrange strips of pastry criss cross over the tops. Bake in a hot oven, 450 F. Cool and garnish around the edge with cream cheese, or it may be put through a pastry bag. The cream cheese may be softened with a little cream before using if it seems too firm.

MRS. A. WENDLER
Ocean Drive, Newport R. I.

COTTAGE CHEESE CAKE

Line an eight inch by eight inch pan with cookie dough, made by sifting 1 cup flour, ¼ cup sugar, ½ tsp. baking powder together. Work in 1 tbsp. shortening and add one egg, well beaten. Roll out.

Filling

2 lbs. cottage cheese, pressed dry, and rubbed through collander
4 tbsps. butter, melted, and added to cheese
1 cup sugar
4 tbsps. corn starch
1 cup medium cream
1 cup rich milk
4 eggs
Juice of ½ lemon

Beat the eggs with egg beater, then add sugar and beat again. Add to cheese and butter. Dissolve the cornstarch in the milk and cream and add to the mixture, and add the lemon juice. Pour the mixture into the pan lined with the cookie dough and bake for one hour in a moderate oven, or until set.

Canal Victim's Body Is Sent to R. I. Home

Bellows Falls, Vt., Sept. 26—The body of Vincent B. Hooder, 23, of Providence, R. I., who disappeared from Fort Ethan Allen Sept. 13, has been sent by train to his home.

A member of the first division, Hooder had been missing nine days before his body was recovered from the Bellows Falls canal. Identification was established through a pocketbook and laundry marks.

Boy, Crushed by Truck, Succumbs

BIDS AND PROPOSALS*

CITY OF BOSTON
TRANSIT DEPARTMENT

Proposals for Removing Buildings on Blackstone, Cross and Endicott Streets, Boston, Traffic Tunnel.

The Transit Department of the City of Boston, 1 Beacon Street, seventh floor, invites proposals from citizens of the United States and corporations or other legal associations wherein the controlling interest to the extent of at least one-half thereof is owned by a citizen or citizens of the United States, for removing buildings on Blackstone, Cross and Endicott Streets, Boston, Traffic Tunnel. A bond of an approved surety company will be required for the faithful performance of the contract in a sum of twelve thousand dollars. Proposals must be filled out and signed by the bidder on forms to be obtained at this office, inclosed in a sealed envelope, indorsed "Removing Buildings on Blackstone, Cross and Endicott Streets, Boston, Traffic Tunnel," and delivered to the Department, or to its secretary, before 12 o'clock noon on Monday, October 9, 1933, at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read. A properly certified check in the sum of four thousand (4,000) dollars, payable to the city, must accompany the proposal. This check shall become the property of the city if the contract is not executed by the bidder within the time prescribed after the date of the notification by the Department of the acceptance of the proposal and the readiness of the contract for signature. Proposals must be made in duplicate. The sealed duplicate, without check, is to be deposited by the bidder with the City Auditor, Room 20, City Hall, previous to the time named for opening the proposals. Plans, proposals, specifications and forms of contract may be obtained at this office on or after Monday, September 25, 1933. A deposit of $5, in cash or by certified check, will be required for a set of plans and two sets of the specifications. Mutilation of them will be deemed sufficient cause for the forfeiture of said deposit. The Department reserves the right to reject any or all proposals.

By order of the City of Boston Transit Department,
EDWARD F. CONDON, Secretary.

Stop Dumping Here of Foreign Goods

If it is a part of our program to prevent unfair competition not only from abroad, but unfair competition among our own people, it is necessary that we should put an immediate stop to the dumping for foreign manufactured goods in this country.

The broad purposes of the National Recovery Act cannot be realized, nor can the intensive NRA campaign now going on throughout the country be brought to a successful conclusion, unless this dumping of foreign goods in America is stopped.

WE MUST HAVE MORE DRASTIC GOVERNMENT ACTION.

Quotas are being established and, by day to day modification and control, made to serve as effective barriers to the introduction of foreign-made goods.

One need only point to the recent actions of Italy, France and Germany to see with what alert watchfulness and hair-trigger activity their respective tariffs against foreign goods are manipulated, to the complete exclusion of alien wares and the protection of domestic products.

America has begun in a very timid way to take cognizance of this situation.

The Treasury Department has just issued orders against the dumping of some products from Japan, Germany and The Netherlands.

The orders, signed by Acting Secretary of the Treasury Acheson, are directed against the dumping of incandescent light bulbs, lamps and rubber-soled fabric-topped footwear, from Japan, celluloid thumbtacks from Germany and tear-gas from The Netherlands.

These products have been offered in the American market at less than the cost of the raw materials which enter into their manufacture in this country.

A heavy duty will be assessed in the future against such goods, intended to effectually prevent their being dumped within our borders to the prejudice and detriment of our domestic industries.

The Treasury Department has also under consideration similar measures against British cement, rubbed-soled footwear from Czechoslovakia, scrap iron and steel products from European countries in general, matches from Japan, fish products from Norway, Portugal, Japan and the United Kingdom, and fibre rugs from Japan and Czechoslovakia.

The belated action of the Treasury in regard to these comparatively few items is only a beginning and, compared to the scale upon which dumping is now practiced and has been permitted by this country, not even a very good beginning.

The Government at Washington should take more vigorous steps to protect the American market, to defend the American manufacturer and to make the national recovery campaign a success.

Raising prices at home will amount to nothing if pauper-made products of foreign lands are allowed to control the American market.

Wage raising here will not be permanent if our industries have to compete with the cheap labor of foreign lands, because in that case our labor will have to meet that pauper competition.

To protect the American working man, the American farmer, the American manufacturer—to protect every American citizen—it is absolutely necessary that we exclude foreign products manufactured on an unfair basis.

Our Heroes Suffer

Red Tape Delays Jobs and Relief

Cyrus E. Dallin of Massachusetts has executed many beautiful and fascinating works of sculpture but none more famous than the Liberty Loan statue made by him during the World War.

You remember it, of course, because it is still much in evidence where people love and admire art and patriotism.

"Captured but not Conquered." The hatless doughboy stands there with hand clenched, jaws set, his whole attitude one of resolute determination. He has been taken by the enemy but has not and will not surrender.

The inspiration of this sculpture was Edgar M. Halyburton, the first Yankee captured in the World War. He was found lately, in Detroit. He had lost his barber shop in the bank crisis there and had been out of work for months. He is one of 5000 workers to be given jobs this week in the Ford plant.

Halyburton is one of the many thousands of brave ex-service men who had suffered in peace times in a land of plenty some of the privations they knew in war.

When the honor of the Nation was at stake, and its security threatened, they responded with universal and unstinted loyalty.

Now when their economic security is imperilled, the country should respond to their needs with the same enthusiasm.

Give them work. Make them independent. Secure them and their families against privation and hardship. The Nation should take them in and give them compensatory employment on the vast public works program until private industry is able to absorb them in their old jobs. If we had less red tape and more direct action, several hundred thousand of men would be gainfully employed today.

No 'Silver Shirts'

New Klan Move Languishes

Thrifty New Englanders refuse to part with the $10 which is the fee for enrollment.

The history of all such movements has been that the funds have rarely found their way into general circulation but did provide a soft living for the organizers and other insiders.

If the people of New England have any $10 bills to spare they might well purchase the products of New England factories, New England stores and New England labor rather than to fatten any little clique which seeks to thrive on bigotry, intolerance and prejudice.

Wherever you go these days, you see the Blue Eagle of the NRA, raised proudly over the national slogan, "We Do Our Part."

This is a symbol of mutual and patriotic co-operation among our people in their desire for economic recovery which means business, employment and general prosperity.

The aim of the time should be to band all our people together in mutual and friendly co-operation, not to divide them on religious or racial pretexts. Victories are not won by divided people.

Schools Now or Jails Later?

"Build schools today or jails later."

That grim warning was given to Uncle Sam last week on the eve of an emergency meeting of educators in Washington to "discuss means of assuring every child an education."

U. S. Commissioner of Education Zook said:

"It is estimated 100,000 children have been thrown back on the schools by the recovery codes, and the schools must find a way to handle them."

Charles A. Lee, Superintendent of School in Missouri, said:

"It costs $300 a year to keep a criminal. A good educational program can be provided at $50 a year per pupil. The Government ought to be able to choose the better of these two possibilities."

Having abated child labor, Uncle Sam must keep the idle children off the streets and away from the breeding spots of crime.

The only way to accomplish that purpose is to provide adequate schools—and the public works program provides a medium.

First Time in Maine

YORK HARBOR, Me., Sept. 26—We entered Maine, first time for me, through its oldest town, Kittery, settled in 1647, by crossing a spindly bridge at Portsmouth, N. H. Along streams were many fishermen and at once the distinct aroma of pines. And a woodsy feeling.

O. O. McIntyre

There's an agreeable, established look about Kittery. Venerable nestors hobbled the sidewalks on canes, greeting one another with frozen twinkles and exchanging sudden stingy blurts. There's a formidable impression this is a Cal Coolidge community of close chewers and tight spitters.

For Maine strikes a stranger as stern. I thought of that "Way Down East" blizzardy line of parental greeting to the fallen daughter: "Out of my house! I'll have no dinner of your gittin'!" The only emotional outlet in the crust were gypsy palmists bivouacing along the highways—dozens of them.

I was especially interested in the William Dean Howells summer residence and study near by, now occupied during season by John Mead Howells, his architect son. In this house Mark Twain, James Whitcomb Riley, Hamlin Garland, Opie Read and scores of noted authors used to gather for a week-end in tayle.

• • •

York Harbor shimmers the same aqua-marine hue of the Mediterranean—the clearest stretch of water I have seen in America. Almost the entire native and transient population lives in bathing suits from May until October. Many children were burnt licorice black.

• • •

A short drive up the fabled rock-ribbed coast is Kennebunkport, where Booth Tarkington and Kenneth Roberts, the writers, live. We saw the home where Tarkington turned out so many novels. A dog raced across the estate. I wondered if it might be the one that turns so ferocious upon hearing the plink of a banjo.

• • •

Ogunquit is one of many artist colonies with a little theatre where such valiant troupers as Blanche Ring, Mabel Taliaferro, Hilda Spong, Anne Seymour, Ruth St. Denis and Mary Nash appeared this late summer in quixotic revivals of "Philip Goes Forth" and "The Late Christopher Bean." The power of suggestion plays queer pranks. We saw the names on a billboard and I hopped out to rush across the street to speak to Blanche Ring. And skipped right back as red as anything.

• • •

Maine is remindful of the last hold the camping movement has on youth of America. The first of such camps was established in Maine in 1896. From here they spread to almost every state. But Maine has maintained her lead, and has the greatest number by far.

• • •

I talked to a young policeman along the beach at York Harbor, a hardy rookie with a down-younder twang. He said it has been the poorest season in memory of the oldest inhabitant—and inhabitants come venerable hereabies. "Some of the regulars," he twinkled, "have scarcely one yacht to rub against another."

• • •

We dined at Old Orchard, from the beach of which so many airships have taken off for European flights. Memory offered a twinge for the fate of brave Phil Payne, the newspaperman, whose last mortal view of America was from here. The dinner was quite naturally fresh trout, so highly bespoke. I'm not much of a trout man, but I stoked up on the finest cole slaw ever tasted. And a cinnamon sprinkled apple dumpling that was a lulu.

• • •

I am not savvy, but along the roadside are canary-yellow signs in black letters "Kiss Your Wife." I saw them everywhere. I suppose it's just Maine being terribly, terribly old-fashioned.

What Prohibition Did

THIS IS not going to be a nice article, but a sickening, shameful article.

You will not like to read it. You will not want to face the facts in it.

But if you have a spark of honesty or decency in you, you will read it. If you have a particle of patriotism in you, you will face these facts.

FOR THEY ARE THE TRUTH ABOUT AMERICA TODAY.

Elsie Robinson

They are the truth about what you and I have done to America with our vote for the 18th Amendment, or by our defiance of that law.

Today we are going to talk about little girls.

Have you a little girl? Do you love some little girl? Then listen to what happened this year, in Prohibition America, to seven little girls.

There is a certain little town. For obvious reasons, we will not give the name, for this is a true story. (God knows, I wish it weren't!) It is a nice little town; the sort of town of which Americans boast. Perhaps you grew up in just such a little town yourself.

A big, airy, brick High School is the pride of that nice little town. Last June 39 youngsters were graduated from that High School. Seventeen little boys, very red and wiggly in their new blue suits; 22 little girls, very sweet and fluttery in their ruffled white organdie.

But—(God forgive us, that we should even have to write this for an American paper!)—

Three of those young hearts shuddered, not with joy, but with terror and agony—FOR THREE OF THOSE LITTLE GIRLS WERE ABOUT TO BECOME MOTHERS.

Terrible? Wait! That isn't all.

A fifth vanished. Ever since last year she'd "been acting sorta wild, though she came of awful nice folks." Someone saw her with a strange man. Someone else thought she passed them in a city a hundred miles away. Her mother still sits, waiting, with a dreadful smile that daily grows more fixed, more vacant.

The mother of a sixth girl envies the mother of the girl who is dead. At least her vigil is over. She knows that her little girl is safe at last, even though it be in a grave.

YOU AND I DID IT.

We have "sowed the wind" of intolerance and intemperance. We have "reaped the whirlwind"—the ghastly whirlwind of debauchery and crime, despair and death. And now we realize what we've done, and voter by voter, State by State, we're battling our way back to decency.

Thirty-one states have already repealed the 18th Amendment. With the 36th, Prohibition will have passed away.

BUT WILL THAT CLEAN UP OUR HOMES—WIPE OUT CRIME?

Yes, it will, and for the simplest, soundest reason on earth—PEOPLE WANT TO BE GOOD.

Those seven little girls wanted to be good. They were as modest at heart as their mothers were before them.

THEY FOUND ONLY THE HIP FLASK WE HAD GLORIFIED BY OUR FANATICISM, OR OUR FURY!

Seven little girls destroyed. But if, out of pity and remorse, we now put our madness behind us, and once more make America safe and clean for all little girls—

THEY WILL NOT HAVE DIED IN VAIN!

The Quick and the Dead

If trouble frets you, think of this:
All earthly trouble dead men miss.
They never feel the touch of pain.
Cold and indifferent they must lie
Though kings in purple robes pass by

All tasks the morning's dead must miss.
The whispered voices they won't hear
Nor see the friends who gather near.
Unmoved and undisturbed they'll stay.

If gray the clouds hang overhead
They'll be unnoticed by the dead.
Only the living hear the storm.
Know when the day is cold and warm,
Face doubts and feel the weight of care
And rise to burdens they must bear.

To worry and to suffer pain;
To feel the chilling autumn rain;
To wish and want and plan and scheme;
See failure wreck your fondest dream
And rise against the odds to strive
Is proof that you are stilll alive.

President Wants to Avert Cuban Intervention

By James T. Williams, Jr.

American intervention in Cuba will be ordered by President Roosevelt only when all measures short of such a last resort make intervention under the Platt amendment imperative.

Reliance upon the navy to carry out measures short of intervention will be continued until these measures fail to enable the administration to perform its full duty in Cuba to the United States, to Cuba and to the world.

Reliance upon the army will be reserved against the day when complete intervention offers the only honorable method of meeting the challenge which Cuba's grave plight may soon present to the United States.

The Roosevelt program in this regard is designed to exemplify the attitude of "the good neighbor." And "the good neighbor" in striving to contribute the power of his example toward the promotion of the welfare of the neighborhood in which he lives always puts his duty towards his neighbor on a plane above mere commercial profit to himself.

In striving by every honorable means to avert the necessity of resorting to intervention in Cuba the Roosevelt administration is quickened by these two major purposes:

PUT HOUSE IN ORDER

First, to encourage the Cuban people to put their own house in order without subjecting themselves to the humiliation of being compelled to accept outside aid in the performance of this domestic duty.

Second, to make the neighborly relationship that exists today between Mexico and the United States and all the republics of Central and South America.

This, it is believed, can best be done by averting the necessity of a resort in Cuba to measures which, however justified they might be by the critical condition of affairs in Cuba, would offend the sensibilities of our sister republics in the pan-American union and make pan-American amity and accord an easy mark for the political sniping of European or Asiatic mischiefmakers.

The ties which bind the republics of the three Americas in the fellowship of pan-American Association, as the Roosevelt administration believes, are primarily based upon a common love of liberty and a common passion for justice as "the breath of liberty's being."

Next in importance to a common devotion to the American system of government as opposed to those European systems, against which our neighbors to the south rebelled and from which they emancipated themselves, comes a common necessity for self-defense.

The defense problem of the republics of the three Americas and specially of the United States, Mexico, and the republics of Central America, are of vital importance to these countries, because it involves the obligations shared by all of them.

WILL NOT FLINCH.

Should yellow fever, for example, follow in the wake of anarchy in Cuba, the menace of that scourge would not be limited to the peoples of the United States. It would extend also to the people of Mexico, the republics of Central America and the republics further south.

One of the reasons for the sanctions involved in the Platt amendment is to be found in the necessity of preventing in Cuba a condition of anarchy and the outbreak of yellow fever that might quickly follow.

But yellow fever is not the only enemy that the destruction of all government in Cuba might bring to the surface. The red trail of communism might soon appear from one end of Cuba to the other should the Cuban people lose control of the situation and should the United States flinch from going to their aid.

There are enemies more dangerous even than these to the neighborhood embraced within the fellowship of the pan-American Union. And these enemies would also menace the entire neighborhood. These are among the grave considerations that far exceed the rise or fall of trade between the three Americas.

By pursuing the policy exemplified by the role of "The Good Neighbor," the Roosevelt administration is striving to meet the challenge of Cuba's critical situation without resort to intervention, but in the firm resolve not to flinch from intervention if that way lies the only path of duty.

Boy of Twelve Leads Tribesmen Against the British at Historic Khyber Pass—Dutch Empire

By Edwin C. Hill

Fighting planes of the British air force sing their savage song these days high over the Himalayan passes of the northern India frontier, celebrating the 76th year of British rule in India by dropping high explosives upon the turbaned heads of the Afridis, the fierce tribesmen that have started a new war against British authority. It is one of those little wars which Britain is everlastingly waging somewhere in the East, but this one has its unique and romantic side.

The tribesmen assailing Khyber Pass—the great gateway into northern India, one of the strategic posts which the shrewdness of the British lion seized upon long ago—are led not by a six-footer with a black beard and a gulwar three feet long, but by a boy of 12. The boy's name is Ghulam Nabi, and he is the son of a border chief of the Afridis. Nothing is impossible in India, especially in the Khyber, and this 12-year-old is giving the British Raj more trouble than they have had for many a day.

Interesting to recall that one of the world's greatest conquerors, Babur, founder of the Mogul Empire, was a soldier leader at the age of 11, had conquered half Asia by 16 and broke through the Khyber to seize all India before he was 32. Young Ghulam Nabi may cut something of a splash before his time comes. After all, Babur the Mogul did not have to face the white man's machine guns or 1000-pound high explosives plumped down from above.

The present "little war" is one of an incredibly long series of conflicts that have raged through Khyber Pass. For probably 50 centuries races from the north have striven to smash through the only cleft that shows in the Himalayas. History has seen a long parade of conquerors through the Khyber; seen, too, the retreat of some of them.

Alexander the Great led his Greeks and Macedonians through the great pass, and after him came the Mongols, the Turks and the Moguls. And now the British are defending it once more, clinging to it as the key to India and to her trade in the Far East.

A book and a motion picture call anew to the great empire, far out in the hot, eastern seas, which is ruled by one of the smallest western nations, little Holland. The picture catches a savage old giant in a threatening mood. The old giant is the volcano of Krakatoa, which rises out of the burning sea in Sunda Strait, between Java and Borneo.

It was away back in 1883 that Krakatoa literally shook the solid earth when it blew its head off. So terrific were the explosions that they were heard as far away as Ceylon and the Philippine Islands. A thousand miles from Malaysia the air was thick and misty with the dust of that frightful explosion. No man knows how many little brown men and little brown women perished in that agony of a mountain. And now old Krakatoa, with anger still in his primitive heart, growls again, and threatens, and sends plumes of menacing smoke floating out over the Dutch plantations.

The book which finds its color and its action in the great Dutch empire of 50,000,000 souls, an empire which has demonstrated a colonial genius on the part of the Dutch people, is a fascinating volume called "White Money," and has just been published. It tells the vivid tale of the life of the rubber planters during the phenomenal boom in the price of rubber some years ago, when the British and the Dutch had cornered the market and sent prices sky high. And it goes to show the simple fact that most simple people know, and of which politicians and statesmen are often so curiously ignorant, that human nature is about the same around the curve of the earth, in any land, in any clime and, yes, in any time.

For when the boom in rubber reached Sumatra there followed among the white planters the same breakdown in common sense and in character that the rest of the world knew during the big stock market splurge of a few years ago. As rubber prices soared and money flowed like water, character disintegrated among all except the very strong and level-headed. They had overcome hardships and adversity, these exiles from Europe. They had fought and tamed the wild tribes of the jungle. They had made the desert bloom and subdued unfriendly nature. But prosperity was too much for many of them.

They believed, as most of us believed back in 1929, as many of our economists and statesmen believed, that poverty was a thing of the past, that high prices would continue forever, and that the old virtues of thrift and hard work and simple living could be discarded for all time. They gave themselves up to love and liquor, a dangerous combination at any time, under the most temperate of suns, but fatal in the tropics. And as the fibre of their character decayed, the crash fell upon them with the loss of their savings and their melancholy retreat from the blazing, treacherous, fascinating East to begin a new life in Europe.
